U.S. Task Force Attacks Viet Reds; 47 Enemy Slain

SAIGON (AP) — An American task force sweeping down Black Virgin Mountain clashed for the second day today with North Vietnamese troops entrenched in caves.

Reports from the field said 47 enemy soldiers were killed, mostly by American bombers and artillery that blasted the caves and boulders along the slope of the 3,230-foot mountain. The only American casualties reported today were three wounded.

The North Vietnamese toll for the two days of fighting 55 miles northwest of Saigon was put at 110 dead, while U.S. casualties totaled two killed, nine wounded and a helicopter shot down, the U.S. Command said.

The 25th Division's Task Force Jones—more than 1,000 infantrymen backed by tanks and armored personnel carriers—began its sweep down the mountain three days ago but encountered little resistance the first day.

Shortly after dawn Thursday, as reconnaissance elements began inching down the slope, they came under fire from small arms, machine guns and rocket grenades.

Jet bombers and rocket-firing helicopters raked the North Vietnamese positions. Covering their retreat with tear gas, the North Vietnamese troops pulled back into the scores of caves that honeycomb the mountain.

U.S. tanks at the bottom of the mountain blasted the caves, while the infantrymen in gas masks pressed down the hill, encountering small pockets of resistance.

After 10 hours of fighting Thursday, 63 enemy bodies were counted.

Two Americans had been killed and six wounded.

U.S. officers estimate that a North Vietnamese battalion is on the mountain, perhaps as many as 400 troops. The mountain apparently is used as a staging area for North Vietnamese troops operating around Tay Ninh City, a key provincial capital seven miles southwest of the mountain.

Allied communiques reported numerous other actions at various points across the country Thursday and today, with nearly 200 other North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed. U.S. casualties were five killed and 65 wounded. The U.S. Command also announced the loss of two more helicopters, raising to 6,304 the total number of U.S. planes and helicopters lost in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported eight Vietnamese killed and 25 wounded in four enemy rocket and mortar attacks during the night.

President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that American combat troops will be needed in South Vietnam beyond 1970 to protect remaining U.S. support troops and to aid the Saigon government's forces.

GE Strike Brings Crisis To Workers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
While efforts to negotiate an end to the 11-week-old General Electric Co. strike continue, the economic effects of the walkout point to a deepening crisis for workers and their families in at least one major GE plant location.

J. Curtis Counts, director of the Federal Mediation Service, met separately in New York Thursday with GE officials and leaders of the AFL-CIO International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, largest of the 12 striking unions.

In Pittsfield, Mass., a city of 60,000 where GE employs 6,000, "the situation is gloomy and serious, maybe even critical," said one man close to the banking community.

Pittsfield officials reported about 1,000 GE strikers are drawing welfare assistance totaling $125,000 a month. And another report said the strikers are on the picket lines now because they need the $24-a-week payments.

There has been little evidence of progress in the negotiations in the strike which ripped GE plants across the nation when 147,000 employees struck Oct. 27.

In Warren, Mich., near Detroit, 1,100 United Auto Workers joined the strike Thursday. Another 6,000 UAW members have been striking since Oct. 27.

Agnew Rules Out Troops For Malaysia

SINGAPORE (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew indicated today that the United States will be ready, if asked, to assist the Commonwealth effort to maintain the big Singapore Naval Base after the British withdrawal next year.

But Agnew, talking with newsmen on his flight from Kuala Lumpur to Singapore, gave a flat "no" when asked if this might include sending U.S. ground troops to Malaysia. And he added that Malaysian leaders made no request "for any aid whatsoever."

A newsmen asked whether U.S. policy is to encourage such regional efforts as the current moves by five Commonwealth members—Singapore, Malaysia, Britain, Australia and New Zealand—to keep the Singapore base going after 1971.

"It is not only to encourage it," Agnew replied, "but it is, in selected cases, to assist the regional grouping where we feel it is directly to our interest in the Pacific."

In Singapore as in Kuala Lumpur, Agnew renewed U.S. assurances of defense against external aggression and said the United States plans to remain a power in Asia.

Agnew had a short meeting with President Yuo bin Ithak and presented him moon rocks, a Singapore flag that the Apollo 11 astronauts took to the moon and pictures of Singapore taken from space.

In the afternoon, Agnew held his major business session of his two days on the island, a meeting with Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew.

In contrast to the strict security that marked the vice president's 36-hour stay in Malaysia, his party found a more relaxed welcome in Singapore. Townspeople lined the streets, and traffic was not barred as the vice president's motorcade made its way from the airport. Agnew leaves Sunday for the far-flung Indonesian island of Bali.

During his talk with the newsmen aboard his plane Agnew also disclosed that he had suggested to leaders in Afghanistan the possibility of using their neutral position to help improve relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

4 U.S. Soldiers Now Face Trials In My Lai Slayings

WASHINGTON (AP) — With four soldiers now charged, Army sources say it may take another three months to complete investigations of 22 other men suspected of involvement in the alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

Formal charges of premeditated murder were filed Thursday against Sgt. Charles E. Hutto, 21, of Tallulah, La., and Pvt. Gerald A. Smith, 22, of Chicago. Hutto also was accused of assault with intent to commit murder.

A sex crime angle entered the case for the first time as Hutto also was charged with rape and Smith with "indecent assault on a Vietnamese female."

Since there will be a sort of grand jury investigation before it is decided whether to court martial the two young soldiers, the Army refused to provide any details.

But Army sources said "a small number" of alleged slayings figured in both cases.

Court-martial trials are pending for 1st Lt. William L. Calley, Jr., 26, of Waynesville, N.C., accused of the premeditated murder of 109 civilians at My Lai, and Staff Sgt. David Mitchell, 29, Saint Francisville, La., charged with assault with intent to murder 30 noncombatants.

Both Hutto and Smith were due to be discharged from the Army next Tuesday, completing three-year hitch. However, their releases have been held up and there are indications the charges may have been filed at this time to have them on record before their enlistments end.

President Nixon Turns 57 Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, back at the White House after a nine-day California vacation, marked his 57th birthday today but the White House said no elaborate observance was planned.

There was only one caller listed officially on the White House calendar today, and then the President planned to have a quiet dinner with the first lady and their daughter Tricia.

The caller was Terence Cardinal Cooke of New York, vicar general of armed forces for the Catholic church, who planned to report to Nixon on his recent visit to Vietnam.

This panel is trying to determine whether the failure of a field level investigation shortly after the alleged massacre was incompetent or a deliberate cover-up.

Consumers Set Revolt In Philly

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — "Caveat emptor" is Latin for "buyer beware."

But the purpose of a new company called "Caveat Emptor, Inc." is to make sellers beware—of palming off shoddy merchandise or providing slipshod servicing jobs on such items as home appliances and cars.

"I've been clipped so many times I wanted to do something about it," James E. Magner, founder and president of Caveat Emptor, said Thursday.

Magner plans to use gentle persuasion, then pickets and sound trucks if necessary, to shame the unscrupulous into "giving an honest job for an honest dollar."

Caveat Emptor was chartered in Pennsylvania last October and so far has signed up 300 families at $5 a year, Magner said.

"We plan to go nationwide and have 50,000 members eventually," he declared.

Magner, an insurance broker, and his brother, Joseph P. Magner, are principal stockholders.

Magner said he decided to start the company after trying unsuccessfully to get a new electric typewriter put into running order.

He said the company would follow up a member complaint by sending a man to talk to the offending vendor of wares or services.

If nothing happened, "then we'd picket the place," employing college students and housewives hired at an hourly wage.

Magner said additional pressure would be exerted in extreme cases through a sound truck and publicity in a newspaper he is planning for members.

Caveat Emptor's official kickoff date is Jan. 15.

County Shivers In Zero Weather

Winds estimated at 20 to 25 miles per hour with gusts to 28 mph and temperatures as low as 13 below recorded in some parts of the county Thursday closed all county schools, curtailed local plans operation and left numerous cars stalled throughout the city and county.

The thermometer at the Circleville reading station reached one degree before noon Thursday for the day's high temperature. Overnight low was a minus two degrees, for one of the coldest 24 hour periods on record.

Twenty mile per hour winds with temperatures at two below is equivalent to minus 43 degrees on the wind chill index.

Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc. office in Circleville have announced curtailment of gas service to the Du Pont, Owens-Illinois, PPG and GE plants in order that good domestic pressure can be maintained. Ralston-Purina and Eshelman Mills have voluntarily curtailed gas usage.

AT GE, E. G. Grigg, plant manager reported a number of employees were sent home early due to curtailment of natural gas supply. Currently all employees are scheduled to report to work at their usual time.

Gas company spokesman added that residential heating pressure is in "good shape". The local facility has no way of immediately determining the amount of gas used within the past 24-hour period but the company manager submitted the information that "there was a lot used."

Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. reported "normal load growth" of electricity during the sub-zero weather. South Central Power, serving the rural area, reported greatly accelerated use. Both companies have maintained service

Cage Game Rescheduled

Due to the cold weather there have been some changes made in the local high school basketball picture this weekend.

Westfall's game at Adena has been cancelled for tonight and rescheduled for 6 p.m. Tuesday at Adena. Saturday's game with Piketon has not been cancelled as yet.

Circleville, Logan Elm and Teays Valley will play as scheduled tonight and Saturday.

Fire And Blast Hit Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fire, following an explosion, raged along a street in the Westwood section today for about six hours before it was extinguished and its source, a four-inch gas main, was repaired.

Flames leaped as high as 100 feet and families from two nearby homes were evacuated.

One fireman was thrown from the truck when the explosion occurred as firemen were called to check an apparent gas leak. He was not seriously hurt.

Firemen used a powder chemical to finally put out the blaze. An official of the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. said that pressure was reduced in the area, but no homes went without gas.

with no problems encountered. Snow, drifted to the depth of four feet in rural areas, and the cold weather itself, were responsible for county school's closing Friday. Crews are currently at work with snow plows, opening rural roads for vehicle passage.

In spite of the bitter cold, a fine representation of area residents turned out Thursday to visit the Bloodmobile in Circleville to donate 11 1/2 units of blood.

For the coldest weather he had ever known, Jerry Castle, city mail carrier, dressed against the bitter cold and biting winds in lightweight insulated underwear, a pair of heavy quilted insulated underwear, a sweater, insulated jacket, topped with his regulation winter coat.

His head coverings consisted of his mail cap with ear tabs, a scarf and cold weather mask which he says will have to be replaced by a different type, collected moisture inside the mask froze his eyelashes and eyebrows.

The majority of residents, exposed to the extreme cold, admitted to the cold, but continued activities in normal fashion.

Diminishing winds and slightly rising temperatures will bring some relief from the frigid air. The current weather forecast is for a daytime high of 10 to 12 degrees. Predicted overnight low is zero. Saturday's high temperature is expected to reach 15 degrees.

Man Hijacks TWA Plane To Beirut

Beirut (AP) — A young Frenchman with a rifle and two pistols who said he hated all Americans hijacked a Trans World Airlines jet with 19 other persons aboard to Beirut today. No one was hurt.

The hijacker, dark-haired, bespectacled Christian Belon, told security officials he commanded the plane to protest the Israeli border raid last weekend in which 22 Lebanese were kidnapped and because he hated all Americans.

Belon, 20, riddled the plane's instrument panel with bullets as the Boeing 707 rolled to a stop on the runway at Lebanon's international airport. Then he followed eight other passengers, eight crew members and three other TWA employees down an inflatable escape chute.

The hijacker protested angrily when a police officer slapped him in the face and disarmed him as he slid to the ground, but he did not resist arrest.

Belon took over the New York-to-Rome flight between Paris and Rome. By then it was carrying three passengers who had boarded in the United States, and six—including himself—who had boarded in Paris. The flight originated in Baltimore with a stop in Washington before landing at New York.

Pointing a rifle at pilot Kenneth Marks, Belon ordered him to fly to Damascus, Syria. He was told they would have to stop at Rome to refuel.

While airport police swarmed around the plane at Rome's Fiumicino Airport, Belon held the crew at gunpoint and refused to allow anyone to leave.

More Snow Is Forecast For Sunday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Temperatures were geared for a roaring trip upward—at least to around the zero level—today as the record - shattering cold wave which has gripped Ohio since Wednesday moderated slightly.

As of 6 a.m. today, most of the state was stricken with sub-zero readings during the preceding 36 hours and Columbus suffered through it's coldest 24-hour period in 71 years.

Thursday was the first day since Feb. 10, 1899 that the Capital City underwent 24 hours of below zero readings.

By early this morning, however, a "warming" trend was making headway around the state as a cold front moving out of Canada eased off, but snow was in the forecast.

The Weather Bureau said temperatures were expected to moderate slowly amid diminishing winds today and tonight and by Saturday readings should reach into the teens and shoot into the 20s on Sunday.

But a low pressure system developing east of the Rockies was expected to bring new snow into Ohio around Sunday. Generally, flurries were predicted over the weekend.

Southwestern Ohio was the first area to crack zero this morning. Just before daybreak 3 above was reported at Cincinnati Lunken Airport.

Other 6 a.m. readings: Cleveland -4; Columbus -1; Akron -6; Youngstown -6; Dayton -1; Toledo -1; Mansfield -2; Findlay -4; Zanesville 2.

The bitter cold was taking its toll in inconvenience.

"This is the worst cold snap I have experienced in 15 years," said Columbus Auto Club Manager Russ Campbell, who reported hundreds of troubled cars.

The Cleveland Auto Club received 7,000 service calls from midnight Wednesday to 5 p.m. Thursday and the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. delivered a season high of one million pounds of steam heat per hour to 500 downtown buildings. Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. set a record for natural gas delivery Thursday when 850 million cubic feet was pumped to users.

School closings were reported in all sections and in Cincinnati ice skaters flocked to parks by the thousands. In Columbus, however, authorities closed several parks fearing children might suffer frostbite.

Temperatures eased slightly in parts of the Rockies and Plains. But the cold intensified in much of the East and South. Overnight lows of zero or below ranged from the Rockies to New England and south into Georgia.

Weather-related deaths numbered 12.

Residents went without heat in scattered sections of the Midwest and South as heating systems failed or proved inadequate, or fuel supplies were curtailed. Schools were closed in scores of communities.

Utility companies continued to report record outputs of natural gas and electricity, but the weather slowed delivery in many cases.

4,185 Deaths Are Attributed To Flu Epidemic

LONDON (AP) — British health officials today attributed 4,185 deaths over the past six weeks to the flu epidemic still raging in many parts of the country.

The 2,400 deaths in the week ended last Saturday were the most since 2,500 in a week of February 1951, during an epidemic of another strain of the flu virus.

Health officials have described the current flu virus as mild. They say the large number of deaths has resulted from the wide spread of the disease, rather than its severity.

Ninety-five per cent of the deaths have been among persons 55 years old and over.

Hanoi Military Chief Tells People They Face Long War

Editor's Note: How does the North Vietnamese Communist hierarchy view the Vietnam war today? In late December, Hanoi's leading military theoretician, Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap, published seven essays on warfare. In the following dispatch, an Associated Press reporter analyzes the essays and discusses their relationship to events in South Vietnam.

By PETER ARNETT
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam's 21 million people, on a war footing for nearly three decades, have been told by their most prestigious military leader that victory is still not near and that the war can be expected to continue indefinitely.

This unusually sobering view of the war was presented in a series of seven essays published in a Hanoi newspaper in December. They were by Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap, the victor of Dien Bien Phu, senior strategist for the war in the South, and a contender for the power seat in Hanoi left vacant by the death of President Ho Chi Minh last year.

Gen. Giap's pronouncements are rare. Experts in Saigon compare these seven essays with Giap's famous "people's war, people's army" speeches of the '50s that became a sort of textbook for guerrilla warfare.

They also compare them with his "big victory, great task" articles of 1967 in that they are a major formulation of Communist party military doctrine in the Vietnam war.

But whereas Giap's previous two works rang with confidence and were flavored with the taste of ultimate victory, the December essays are low on patriotic fervor, promising more of the same grinding conflict that has already cost the lives of half a million North Vietnamese troops, and asking for even greater sacrifice.

"In general, the process of a protracted struggle," he wrote, "is that of successively attacking the enemy, gradually repel-ling him, partially overthrowing him, defeating every one of his strategic schemes, gradually scoring victories, and moving toward defeating him completely."

This view of the war is hardly the clearest progression that Giap spelled out in his "people's war, people's army" speeches and it seems that one theme of the December essays is his desire to provide the intellectual underpinning for the strategy now being followed by his forces in the south Vietnamese war front.

The entry of American ground troops into the war in 1965 snatched victory from a Viet Cong people's army that had dutifully followed all Giap's maxims for insurgency. The Tet offensive launched in February 1968 by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces badly battered American resolve.

But two years after that major effort, the United States still has large numbers of forces in Vietnam and in addition is attempting to build the Vietnamese armed forces into a formidable military machine.

The Viet Cong are being pushed into the hills and across the borders. The North Vietnamese troops deployed along the frontier are bled every time they move from their base camps.

Giap's December essays give a hint of this reality to his people, and he seems to be telling them of the new situation, but in carefully worded phrases.

The intellectual underpinning of current strategy comes in Giap's frequent references to the "art of using a small force to fight a big force."

Since late 1968 the North Vietnamese have been developing sapper tactics, using small groups of highly trained men to inflict maximum damage against large installations. By this means North Vietnamese losses have been sharply reduced.

President Nixon Turns 57 Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, back at the White House after a nine-day California vacation, marked his 57th birthday today but the White House said no elaborate observance was planned.

There was only one caller listed officially on the White House calendar today, and then the President planned to have a quiet dinner with the first lady and their daughter Tricia.

The caller was Terence Cardinal Cooke of New York, vicar general of armed forces for the Catholic church, who planned to report to Nixon on his recent visit to Vietnam.

weeks in South Vietnam where they visited My Lai and interviewed dozens of South Vietnamese and Americans.

This panel is trying to determine whether the failure of a field level investigation shortly after the alleged massacre was incompetent or a deliberate cover-up.

Consumers Set Revolt In Philly

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — "Caveat emptor" is Latin for "buyer beware."

But the purpose of a new company called "Caveat Emptor, Inc." is to make sellers beware — of palming off shoddy merchandise or providing slipshod servicing jobs on such items as home appliances and cars.

"I've been clipped so many times I wanted to do something about it," James E. Magner, founder and president of Caveat Emptor, said Thursday.

Magner plans to use gentle persuasion, then pickets and sound trucks if necessary, to shame the unscrupulous into "giving an honest job for an honest dollar."

Caveat Emptor was chartered in Pennsylvania last October and so far has signed up 300 families at $5 a year, Magner said.

"We plan to go nationwide and have 50,000 members eventually," he declared.

Magner, an insurance broker, and his brother, Joseph P. Magner, are principal stockholders.

Magner said he decided to start the company after trying unsuccessfully to get a new electric typewriter put into running order.

He said the company would follow up a member complaint by sending a man to talk to the offending vendor of wares or services.

If nothing happened, "then we'd picket the place," employing college students and housewives hired at an hourly wage.

Magner said additional pressure would be exerted in extreme cases through a sound truck and publicity in a newspaper he is planning for members.

Caveat Emptor's official kick-off date is Jan. 15.

County Shivers In Zero Weather

Winds estimated at 20 to 25 miles per hour with gusts to 28 mph and temperatures as low as 13 below recorded in some parts of the county Thursday closed all county schools, curtailed local plan operation and left numerous cars stalled throughout the city and county.

The thermometer at the Circleville reading station reached one degree below noon Thursday for the day's high temperature. Overnight low was a minus two degrees, for one of the coldest 24 hour periods on record.

Twenty mile per hour winds with temperatures at two below is equivalent to minus 43 degrees on the wind chill index.

Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc. office in Circleville have announced curtailment of gas service to the Du Pont, Owens-Illinois, PPG and GE plants in order that good domestic pressure can be maintained. Ralston-Purina and Eshelman Mills have voluntarily curtailed gas usage.

AT GE, E. G. Grigg, plant manager reported a number of employees were sent home early due to curtailment of natural gas supply. Currently all employees are scheduled to report to work at their usual time.

Gas company spokesman added that residential heating pressure is in "good shape." The local facility has no way of immediately determining the amount of gas used within the past 24-hour period but the company manager submitted the information that "there was a lot used."

Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. reported "normal load growth" of electricity during the sub-zero weather. South Central Power, serving the rural area, reported greatly accelerated use. Both companies have maintained service.

Cage Game Rescheduled

Due to the cold weather there have been some changes made in the local high school basketball picture this weekend.

Westfall's game at Adena has been cancelled for tonight and rescheduled for 6 p.m. Tuesday at Adena. Saturday's game with Piketon has not been cancelled as yet.

Circleville, Logan Elm and Teays Valley will play as scheduled tonight and Saturday.

Fire And Blast Hit Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fire, following an explosion, raged along a street in the Westwood section today for about six hours before it was extinguished and its source, a four-inch gas main, was repaired.

Flames leaped as high as 100 feet and families from two nearby homes were evacuated.

One fireman was thrown from the truck when the explosion occurred as firemen were called to check an apparent gas leak. He was not seriously hurt.

Firemen used a powder chemical to finally put out the blaze. An official of the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. said that pressure was reduced in the area, but no homes went without gas.

with no problems encountered. Snow, drifted to the depth of four feet in rural areas, and the cold weather itself, were responsible for county school's closing Friday. Crews are currently at work with snow plows, opening rural roads for vehicle passage.

In spite of the bitter cold, a fine representation of area residents turned out Thursday to visit the Bloodmobile in Circleville to donate 114 units of blood.

For the coldest weather he had ever known, Jerry Castle, city mail carrier, dressed against the bitter cold and biting winds in lightweight insulated underwear, a pair of heavy quilted insulated underwear, a sweater, insulated jacket, topped with his regulation winter coat.

His head coverings consisted of his mail cap with ear tabs, a scarf and cold weather mask which he says will have to be replaced by a different type, collected moisture inside the mask froze his eyelashes and eyebrows.

The majority of residents, exposed to the extreme cold, admitted to the cold, but continued activities in normal fashion.

Diminishing winds and slightly rising temperatures will bring some relief from the frigid air. The current weather forecast is for a daytime high of 10 to 12 degrees. Predicted overnight low is zero. Saturday's high temperature is expected to reach 15 degrees.

Man Hijacks TWA Plane To Beirut

Beirut (AP) — A young Frenchman with a rifle and two pistols who said he hated all Americans hijacked a Trans World Airlines jet with 19 other persons aboard to Beirut today. No one was hurt.

The hijacker, dark-haired, bearded Christian Belon, told security officials he commanded the plane to protest the Israeli border raid last weekend in which 22 Lebanese were kidnapped and because he hated all Americans.

Belon, 20, riddled the plane's instrument panel with bullets as the Boeing 707 rolled to a stop on the runway at Lebanon's international airport. Then he followed eight other passengers, eight crew members and three other TWA employees down an inflatable escape chute.

The hijacker protested angrily when a police officer slapped him in the face and disarmed him as he slid to the ground, but he did not resist arrest.

Belon took over the New York-to-Rome flight between Paris and Rome. By then it was carrying three passengers who had boarded in the United States, and six—including himself—who had boarded in Paris. The flight originated in Baltimore with a stop in Washington before landing at New York.

Pointing a rifle at pilot Kenneth Marks, Belon ordered him to fly to Damascus, Syria. He was told they would have to stop at Rome to refuel.

While airport police swarmed around the plane at Rome's Fiumicino Airport, Belon held the crew at gunpoint and refused to allow anyone to leave.

More Snow Is Forecast For Sunday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Temperatures were geared for a roaring trip upward—at least to around the zero level—today as the record-shattering cold wave which has gripped Ohio since Wednesday moderated slightly.

As of 6 a.m. today, most of the state was stricken with sub-zero readings during the preceding 36 hours and Columbus suffered through its coldest 24-hour period in 71 years.

Thursday was the first day since Feb. 10, 1899 that the Capital City underwent 24 hours of below zero readings.

By early this morning, however, a "warming" trend was making headway around the state as a cold front moving out of Canada eased off, but snow was in the forecast.

The Weather Bureau said temperatures were expected to moderate slowly amid diminishing winds today and tonight and by Saturday readings should reach into the teens and shoot into the 20s on Sunday.

But a low pressure system developing east of the Rockies was expected to bring new snow into Ohio around Sunday. Generally, flurries were predicted over the weekend.

Southwestern Ohio was the first area to crack zero this morning. Just before daybreak 3 above was reported at Cincinnati Lunken Airport.

Other 6 a.m. readings: Cleveland -4; Columbus -1; Akron -6; Dayton -2; Mansfield -2; Findlay -4; Zanesville -2.

The bitter cold was taking its toll in inconvenience. "This is the worst cold snap I have experienced in 15 years," said Columbus Auto Club Manager Russ Campbell, who reported hundreds of troubled cars.

The Cleveland Auto Club received 7,000 service calls from midnight Wednesday to 5 p.m. Thursday and the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. delivered a season high of one million pounds of steam heat per hour to 500 downtown buildings. Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. set a record for natural gas delivery Thursday when 850 million cubic feet was pumped to users.

School closings were reported in all sections and in Cincinnati ice skaters flocked to parks by the thousands. In Columbus, however, authorities closed several parks fearing children might suffer frostbite.

Temperatures eased slightly in parts of the Rockies and Plains. But the cold intensified in much of the East and South. Overnight lows of zero or below ranged from the Rockies to New England and south into Georgia.

Weather-related deaths numbered 12.

Residents went without heat in scattered sections of the Midwest and South as heating systems failed or proved inadequate, or fuel supplies were curtailed. Schools were closed in scores of communities.

Utility companies continued to report record outputs of natural gas and electricity, but the weather slowed delivery in many cases.

4,185 Deaths Are Attributed To Flu Epidemic

LONDON (AP) — British health officials today attributed 4,185 deaths over the past six weeks to the flu epidemic still raging in many parts of the country.

The 2,400 deaths in the week ended last Saturday were the most since 2,500 in a week of February 1951, during an epidemic of another strain of the flu virus.

Health officials have described the current flu virus as mild. They say the large number of deaths has resulted from the wide spread of the disease, rather than its severity.

Ninety-five per cent of the deaths have been among persons 55 years old and over.

Hanoi Military Chief Tells People They Face Long War

Editor's Note: How does the North Vietnamese Communist hierarchy view the Vietnam war today? In late December, Hanoi's leading military theoretician, Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap, published seven essays on warfare. In the following dispatch, an Associated Press reporter analyzes the essays and discusses their relationship to events in South Vietnam.

By PETER ARNETT
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese 21 million people, on a war footing for nearly three decades, have been told by their most prestigious military leader that victory is still not near and that the war can be expected to continue indefinitely.

This unusually sobering view of the war was presented in a series of seven essays published in a Hanoi newspaper in December. They were by Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap, the victor of Dien Bien Phu, senior strategist for the war in the South, and a contender for the power seat in Hanoi left vacant by the death of President Ho Chi Minh last year.

Gen. Giap's pronouncements are rare. Experts in Saigon compare these seven essays with Giap's famous "people's war, people's army" speeches of the '50s that became a sort of textbook for guerrilla warfare.

They also compare them with his "big victory, great task" articles of 1967 in that they are a major formulation of Communist party military doctrine in the Vietnam war.

But whereas Giap's previous two works rang with confidence and were flavored with the taste of ultimate victory, the December essays are low on patriotic fervor, promising more of the same grinding conflict that has already cost the lives of half a million North Vietnamese troops, and asking for even greater sacrifice.

"In general, the process of a protracted struggle," he wrote, "is that of successively attacking the enemy, gradually repel-ling him, partially overthrowing him, defeating every one of his strategic schemes, gradually scoring victories, and moving toward defeating him completely."

This view of the war is hardly the clearest progression that Giap spelled out in his "people's war, people's army" speeches and it seems that one theme of the December essays is his desire to provide the intellectual underpinning for the strategy now being followed by his forces in the south Vietnamese war front.

The entry of American ground troops into the war in 1965 snatched victory from a Viet Cong people's army that had dutifully followed all Giap's maxims for insurgency. The Tet offensive launched in February 1968 by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces badly battered American resolve.

But two years after that major effort, the United States still has large numbers of forces in Vietnam and in addition is attempting to build the Vietnamese armed forces into a formidable military machine.

The Viet Cong are being pushed into the hills and across the borders. The North Vietnamese troops deployed along the frontier are bloodied every time they move from their base camps.

Giap's December essays give

a hint of this reality to his people, and he seems to be telling them of the new situation, but in carefully worded phrases.

The intellectual underpinning of current strategy comes in Giap's frequent references to the "art of using a small force to fight a big force."

Since late 1968 the North Vietnamese have been developing sapper tactics, using small groups of highly trained men to inflict maximum damage against large installations. By this means North Vietnamese losses have been sharply reduced.

Myrl Shoemaker Announces Candidacy For Legislature

Myrl H. Shoemaker (D), member of the House of Representatives of the 108th General Assembly of Ohio, announced today that he will be a candidate for re-election in 1970 from House District 21 in Ross and Pickaway Counties.

MYRL SHOEMAKER

Shoemaker said, "Although I have been encouraged to seek the Democratic party nomination for Governor in 1970, it is my honest feeling that I can best serve the people of Ross and Pickaway Counties in a legislative capacity."

Shoemaker, stressing the pressing financial needs of local government said, "Assistance to local government is an area of state responsibility and I intend, as I have in the past, to push for legislative measures that will insure such assistance. State authorization to local government to enact permissive taxes at the local level is not in my opinion, a satisfactory solution. Such authorization can be characterized most simply as legislative back-packing."

In evaluating his qualifications for re-election the six term legislator stated that he had strongly supported far-reaching educational programs and noted that he had been appointed both by Governor James A. Rhodes and the General Assembly to serve on several special education committees.

In addition Shoemaker said, "I am currently a member of the House Agriculture and Conservation, Highways and Transportation, and Finance Appropriations Committees. I have also served as a minority party representative on the highly important Legislative Service Commission."

Shoemaker pointed out that he was first elected to the General Assembly in 1958, and that as a senior member of the House of Representatives, "I feel qualified by experience, temperament, and maturity to lead my party in the House." Noting that the present minority leader of the House, John C. McDonald has announced his candidacy for the office of Attorney General, Shoemaker stated, "Should the Democratic Party gain control of the House, I plan, if re-elected, to actively campaign for the office of Speaker. On the other hand if the Republicans maintain control, it is my intention to seek the office of minority leader of my party."

Shoemaker pointed out that seniority becomes an important factor in 1970 — the year of the decennial Federal Census, following which Ohio, in 1971, will have to reapportion the state into 99 house of representative districts and 33 senate districts. "Experience and a good working knowledge of government will weigh heavy in assuring that the interests of Ross and Pickaway Counties will be preserved as a single unit."

Shoemaker, in commenting on his legislative career stated, "In my opinion I have been an effective legislator maintaining the best interests of the state of Ohio while at all times attempting to represent the people of Ross and Pickaway Counties fairly and honestly." In support of this contention he said, "In 1963 at the time the legislature was considering Congressional Redistricting in compliance with a federal court mandate, I successfully opposed the attempt, which if it had succeeded would have been against the best interests of the county, that was made to place part of Ross County in the Sixth Congressional District and the remaining part in the 10th District."

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank the citizens of Ross and Pickaway Counties for their support and I am grateful for having had the opportunity of representing an active and interested populace."

The father of eight children, Shoemaker and his wife, Dorothy, reside at home in Bourneville.

Hanoi . . .

(Continued from Page 1) country to use against a large one: "Our forefathers created the art of using a weak force to fight a strong enemy, use a small force to fight a bigger one, and waging short battles to win protracted wars . . ."

But Giap knows that his forces in the south in recent years have been deployed in numbers up to division size, hardly a small force. The reason he doesn't use larger forces in Vietnam now is that they are open to immediate annihilation through allied detection devices and superior firepower.

Forces can mass for a large attack, he says, "But in concentrating our forces we must make careful calculations and economic use of our forces. We must use our forces in the most rational manner and create the greatest combat strength to overcome the enemy. As for numbers, the fewer the better . . ."

Giap also demands flexibility in tactics: "When it is necessary we must change in time outdated forms of warfare, taking new ones which are more appropriate . . . we should not apply old experience mechanically, or reapply outmoded forms of warfare."

What he seems to be saving is that the classic formulations for fighting a people's war, laid down after defeating the French, may have to be abandoned because of what he calls the current war's "complexities."

Giap suggests other subtle approaches. His classic technique is to begin with the political war, then merge it with the military, and then complete the war totally militarily, a path the Viet Cong followed until the United States entered the war in 1965.

Giap suggests that at some point in time he could go back to the political after the maximum military effort.

Saigon experts are trying to figure out other hidden meanings in the Giap essays. He is a heavy-handed writer, and the essays can be interpreted in many different ways.

But one thing is clear: the North Vietnamese have been told firmly they are not on the verge of victory.

U.S.-Peking Talks Planned For Jan. 20

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says ambassadorial talks between the United States and mainland China, broken off by Peking two years ago, will resume Jan 20 in Warsaw.

The discussions, previously conducted in a Polish palace, will be held in the privacy of the embassies of the two world powers. Washington and Peking have no diplomatic relations but conducted 134 talks in Warsaw from 1958 to 1968.

The opening round of the new discussions will be in the Chinese embassy, with later sessions alternating between the U.S. and Chinese embassies, State Department spokesman Robert J. McLokey said Thursday night.

He did not speculate on the agenda but said it is open-ended. However, Japanese news agency reports from Peking said no quick headway is expected on the issue of Nationalist China.

Screen Writer Settles Lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mitchell Lindemann, author of the screen play "The Ballad of Cat Ballou," says he will accept $120,000 from producer Harold Hecht in an out-of-court settlement of a financial dispute.

The arrangement was announced Thursday after several days of trial in Superior Court of a suit Lindemann brought against Hecht.

The writer charged breach of contract in connection with an other Hecht film, "The Way West," and also alleged that Hecht had never fully paid him for his interest in "Cat."

ARM AND SHOULDER PAIN

Arm and shoulder pain is a common complaint among the American people today. There are various types of shoulder and arm conditions but we find the pain can often be eliminated by tracing the affected nerves to their points of irritation in the spine and removing the cause. The cold sometimes brought out the best in people. A heating plant gave out at a rehabilitation center for teen-age drug addicts at Ellenville, N.Y., late Thursday. An appeal by radio for blankets brought 60 in a few hours.

Frost again whitened northern sections of Florida, and forecasters said warmer weather would not arrive until the weekend. Farmers south of Miami burned old auto tires to prevent tomato crops from being frozen.

Spokesmen for the citrus industry indicated crops did not suffer severe damage through Thursday, partly because the lowest temperatures did not arrive until after sunrise and usually were of short duration.

Among the weather-related deaths was a 14-year-old Memphis girl, a recent heart surgery patient who slipped on ice and fell. Two brothers, 55 and 63, turned up their heater to ward off the cold in Memphis and were asphyxiated.

Light snow or flurries continued across the Great Lakes region into New England.

Myrl Shoemaker Announces Candidacy For Legislature

Myrl H. Shoemaker (D), member of the House of Representatives of the 108th General Assembly of Ohio, announced today that he will be a candidate for re-election in 1970 from House District 21 in Ross and Pickaway Counties.

MYRL SHOEMAKER

Shoemaker said, "Although I have been encouraged to seek the Democratic party nomination for Governor in 1970, it is my honest feeling that I can best serve the people of Ross and Pickaway Counties in a legislative capacity."

Shoemaker, stressing the pressing financial needs of local government said, "Assistance to local government is an area of state responsibility and I intend, as I have in the past, to push for legislative measures that will insure such assistance. State authorization to local government to enact permissive taxes at the local level is not in my opinion, a satisfactory solution. Such authorization can be characterized most simply as legislative buck-passing."

In evaluating his qualifications for re-election the six term legislator stated that he had strongly supported far-reaching educational programs and noted that he had been appointed both by Governor James A. Rhodes and the General Assembly to serve on several special education committees.

In addition Shoemaker said, "I am currently a member of the House Agriculture and Conservation, Highways and Transportation, and Finance Appropriations Committees. I have also served as a minority party representative on the highly important Legislative Service Commission."

Shoemaker pointed out that he was first elected to the General Assembly in 1958, and that as a senior member of the House of Representatives, "I feel qualified by experience, temperament, and maturity to lead my party in the House." Noting that the present minority leader of the House, John C. McDonald has announced his candidacy for the office of Attorney General, Shoemaker stated, "Should the Democratic Party gain control of the House, I plan, if re-elected, to actively campaign for the office of Speaker. On the other hand if the Republicans maintain control, it is my intention to seek the office of minority leader of my party."

Shoemaker pointed out that seniority becomes an important factor in 1970 — the year of the decennial Federal Census, following which Ohio, in 1971, will have to reapportion the state into 99 house of representative districts and 33 senate districts. "Experience and a good working knowledge of government will weigh heavy in assuring that the interests of Ross and Pickaway Counties will be preserved as a single unit."

Shoemaker, in commenting on his legislative career stated, "In my opinion I have been an effective legislator maintaining the best interests of the state of Ohio while at all times attempting to represent the people of Ross and Pickaway Counties fairly and honestly." In support of this contention he said, "In 1963 at the time the legislature was considering Congressional Redistricting in compliance with a federal court mandate, I successfully opposed the attempt, which if it had succeeded would have been against the best interests of the county, that was made to place part of Ross County in the Sixth Congressional District and the remaining part in the 10th District."

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank the citizens of Ross and Pickaway Counties for their support and I am grateful for having had the opportunity of representing an active and interested populace." The father of eight children, Shoemaker and his wife, Dorothy, reside at home in Bourneville.

country to use against a large one: "Our forefathers created the art of using a weak force to fight a strong enemy, use a small force to fight a bigger one, and waging short battles to win protracted wars . . ."

But Giap knows that his forces in the south in recent years have been deployed in numbers up to division size, hardly a small force. The reason he doesn't use larger forces in Vietnam now is that they are open to immediate annihilation through allied detection devices and superior firepower.

Forces can mass for a large attack, he says, "But in concentrating our forces we must make careful calculations and economic use of our forces. We must use our forces in the most rational manner and create the greatest combat strength to overcome the enemy. As for numbers, the fewer the better . . ."

Giap also demands flexibility in tactics: "When it is necessary we must change in time outdated forms of warfare, taking new ones which are more appropriate . . . we should not apply old experience mechanically, or reapply outmoded forms of warfare."

What he seems to be saving is that the classic formulations for fighting a people's war, laid down after defeating the French, may have to be abandoned because of what he calls the current war's "complexities."

Giap suggests other subtle approaches. His classic technique is to begin with the political war, then merge it with the military, and then complete the war totally militarily, a path the Viet Cong followed until the United States entered the war in 1965.

Giap suggests that at some point in time he could go back to the political after the maximum military effort.

Saigon experts are trying to figure out other hidden meanings in the Giap essays. He is a heavy-handed writer, and the essays can be interpreted in many different ways.

But one thing is clear: the North Vietnamese have been told firmly they are not on the verge of victory.

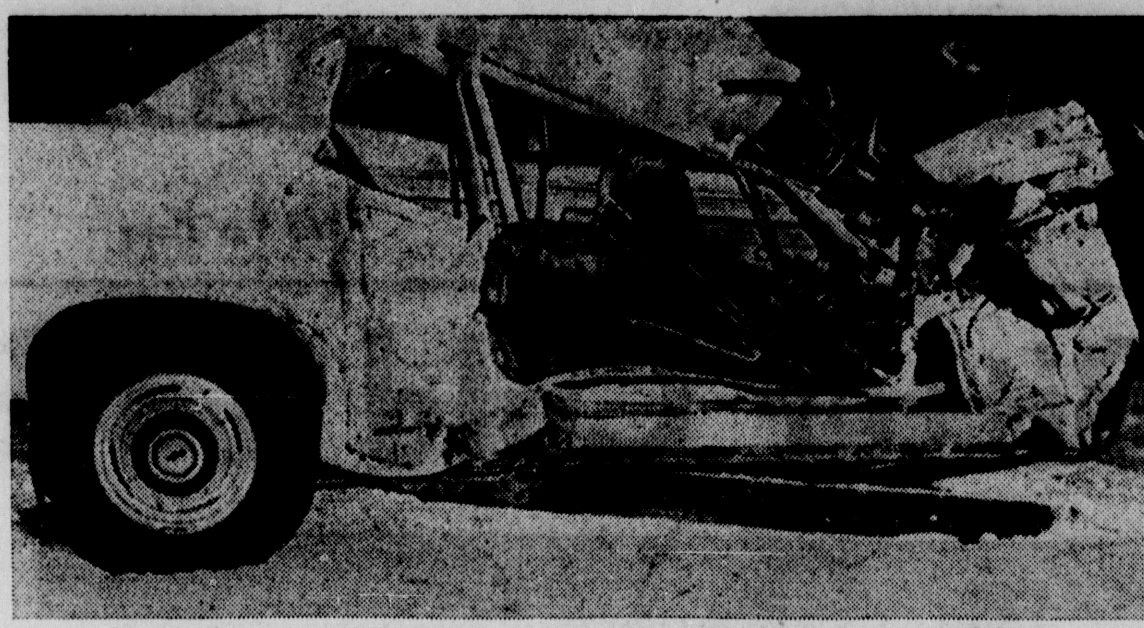

U.S.-Peking Talks Planned For Jan. 20

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says ambassadorial talks between the United States and mainland China, broken off by Peking two years ago, will resume Jan. 20 in Warsaw.

The discussions, previously conducted in a Polish palace, will be held in the privacy of the embassies of the two world powers. Washington and Peking have no diplomatic relations but conducted 134 talks in Warsaw from 1958 to 1968.

The opening round of the new discussions will be in the Chinese embassy, with later sessions alternating between the U.S. and Chinese embassies, State Department spokesman Robert J. Mcloskey said Thursday night.

He did not speculate on the agenda but said it is open-ended. However, Japanese news agency reports from Peking said no quick headway is expected on the issue of Nationalist China.

Screen Writer Settles Lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mitchell Lindemann, author of the screen play "The Ballad of Cat Ballou," says he will accept $120,000 from producer Harold Hecht in an out-of-court settlement of a financial dispute.

The arrangement was announced Thursday after several days of trial in Superior Court of a suit Lindemann brought against Hecht.

The writer charged breach of contract in connection with another Hecht film, "The Way West," and also alleged that Hecht had never fully paid him for his interest in "Cat."

Williamsport Couple To Lead Students In Goodwill Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bush of Williamsport have been appointed to be leaders of a delegation of high school students on a six weeks international good will tour, the People to People High School Student Ambassador Program to Europe next summer.

Now in its eighth year, the travel project has touched the local area for the first time due to a teacher leader in the area.

People to People was organized in 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who hoped it would lead to lasting two-way relationships from which international friendship and understanding could grow.

The High School Student Ambassador program is designed to help students of our country exchange ideas with students and adults of other countries and provide the broadening and educational experiences of travel in the tradition of People to People.

2 Men Indicted For Murdering Black Panther

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cuyahoga County grand jury has indicted two alleged members of the Black Panther Party on charges of first-degree murder in the slaying of a third member who police say was assassinated by his own organization because he was an informer.

Indicted Thursday were Marvin T. Wolfe, 22, and Oscar Williams, 18, both of Cleveland. They are accused of the slaying of 19-year-old James Ferguson Jr., whose body was found behind a tavern on the East Side shortly after midnight Dec. 18. Police said Ferguson, who was lying face down with his legs tied, had been shot two times in the back of the head with a .45-caliber weapon.

Police said Ferguson was a lookout at the alleged headquarters of Black Panthers on East 105th Street which was raided by police Dec. 17. He was free on bond awaiting trial in the holdup of an East Side tavern in November.

Mark Shields Runs Gilligan Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mark Shields, 32, says he is resigning as director of campaigns for the Democratic National Committee to become manager of John J. Gilligan's campaign for governor of Ohio.

Shields, who earlier served as a presidential campaign aide to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, headed Gilligan's 1968 Senate campaign. Gilligan defeated former Sen. Frank J. Lausche in the Democratic primary but lost to William B. Saxbe in the general election.

GI Newsmen Transferred From Duties

SAIGON (AP) — Two military newscasters who accused the U.S. Command of censorship were transferred today from the American Forces Vietnam Network (AFVN) to other duties within the command in Saigon.

A spokesman said Army Spec. 5 Robert E. Lawrence, 27, of Atlanta, Ga., has been made a chaplain's aide and Marine Cpl. Thomas M. Sinkovitz, 21 of Harrisburg, Pa., has been assigned to the 1st Marine Air-Naval Gunfire Liaison Company.

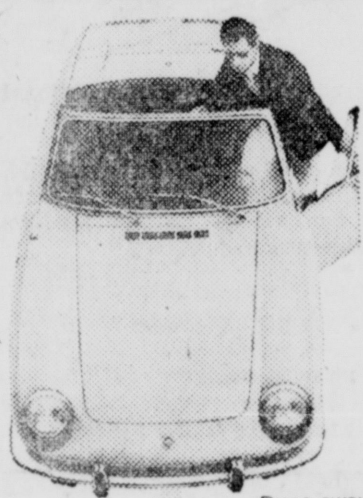

The spokesman said how long they will remain in their new duties "is something to be determined." The command is investigating the case, he added, and the results "will determine a number of things."

Five newsmen at AFVN Saigon have been given other duties or taken off the air in recent months after protesting alleged censorship of unfavorable news.

Lawrence and Sinkovitz were relieved of their duties after a newscast last Saturday night in which Lawrence charged the U.S. Command with suppressing unfavorable news and Sinkovitz a sportscaster who followed Lawrence, endorsed the view.

Lawrence also faces a court-martial on charges of being "disrespectful in language" to a superior officer and failing to obey an order. This incident occurred five days before Lawrence made the censorship charges.

Admit Appalachia Program Slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal agency created five years ago to pull poverty-ridden Appalachia into the mainstream of American affluence acknowledges its impact so far has been "damn small, damn modest."

Half a decade after the Appalachian Regional Commission came to life the average Appalachian mountaineer's income remains well below that of other Americans, malnutrition still scars his children, employment is only a memory and subpar education preordains his offspring to failure.

But the commission, born from John F. Kennedy's incredulity at the poverty he saw during the 1960 West Virginia primary campaign and given life by President Lyndon B. Johnson, measures success in tiny gains.

"They were at the bottom of the barrel and it's difficult to turn that around," says Howard Bray, deputy director of the agency committed to improving the income, health and transportation of the 18 million people isolated in a 13-state area.

Bray pointed to development of the "hardware of new roads, hospitals, schools and sanitation facilities. But these have been damn small, damn modest."

But now for the sick there are hundreds more hospital beds and for the young there are vocational-technical schools. Dozens of communities have new sewage treatment plants and nearly 2,600 miles of new roads are in use, under construction or in planning stages.

And the administration Congress and representatives of the affected states have shown near-unanimous enthusiasm for seeing the effort through.

"Every single one of the governors of the Appalachian states, and we cover the whole range of the political spectrum, likes this program," West Virginia's Republican Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. told a House public works subcommittee last spring.

Congress responded by raising the commission's appropriation from $174.4 million for the year ending last June 30 to $283.4 million for the current fiscal year.

Yet the commission, authorized for a six-year period ending June 30, 1971, faces an uncertain future.

"There are several options," Bray says. "It dies, it is extended, it is modified. We'll be doing a lot of evaluating and soul-searching over the next 18 months."

Williamsport Couple To Lead Students In Goodwill Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bush of Williamsport have been appointed to be leaders of a delegation of high school students on a six weeks international goodwill tour, the People to People High School Student Ambassador Program to Europe next summer.

Now in its eighth year, the travel project has touched the local area for the first time due to a teacher leader in the area.

People to People was organized in 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who hoped it would lead to lasting two-way relationships from which international friendship and understanding could grow.

The High School Student Ambassador program is designed to help students of our country exchange ideas with students and adults of other countries and provide the broadening and educational experiences of travel in the tradition of People to People.

Ambulance Service Rejects Applicant; Beard A No-No

LONDON (AP) — This week a Sikh was rejected for a job with the London Ambulance Service. Among the reasons: his beard might hamper him in giving some patient the kiss of life. His local Community Relations Council said it was collecting all the facts so that in due course a dossier could go to the complaints desk of the Race Relations Board.

2 Men Indicted For Murdering Black Panther

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cuyahoga County grand jury has indicted two alleged members of the Black Panther Party on charges of first-degree murder in the slaying of a third member who police say was assassinated by his own organization because he was an informer.

Indicted Thursday were Marvin T. Wolfe, 22, and Oscar Williams, 18, both of Cleveland. They are accused of the slaying of 19-year-old James Ferguson Jr., whose body was found behind a tavern on the East Side shortly after midnight Dec. 18. Police said Ferguson, who was lying face down with his legs tied, had been shot two times in the back of the head with a .45-caliber weapon.

Police said Ferguson was a lookout at the alleged headquarters of Black Panthers on East 105th Street which was raided by police Dec. 17. He was free on bond awaiting trial in the holdup of an East Side tavern in November.

Mark Shields Runs Gilligan Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mark Shields, 32, says he is resigning as director of campaigns for the Democratic National Committee to become manager of John J. Gilligan's campaign for governor of Ohio.

Shields, who earlier served as a presidential campaign aide to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, headed Gilligan's 1968 Senate campaign. Gilligan defeated former Sen. Frank J. Lausche in the Democratic primary but lost to William B. Saxbe in the general election.

Democratic Party Slates Workshop

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Democratic Party's fifth campaign workshop will be held Saturday afternoon in Cincinnati, State Chairman Eugene P. O'Grady announced today.

Most Democratic aspirants for statewide office, plus many area candidates and party workers are expected to attend the session, O'Grady said.

GI Newsmen Transferred From Duties

SAIGON (AP) — Two military newsmen who accused the U.S. Command of censorship were transferred today from the American Forces Vietnam Network (AFVN) to other duties within the command in Saigon.

A spokesman said Army Spec. 5 Robert E. Lawrence, 27, of Atlanta, Ga., has been made a chaplain's aide and Marine Cpl. Thomas M. Sinkovitz, 21 of Harrisburg, Pa., has been assigned to the 1st Marine Air-Naval Gunfire Liaison Company.

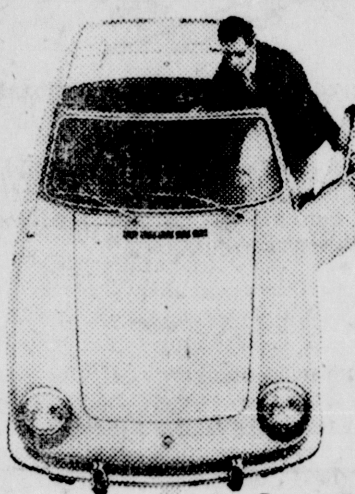

The spokesman said how long they will remain in their new duties "is something to be determined." The command is investigating the case, he added, and the results "will determine a number of things."

Five newsmen at AFVN Saigon have been given other duties or taken off the air in recent months after protesting alleged censorship of unfavorable news.

Lawrence and Sinkovitz were relieved of their duties after a newscast last Saturday night in which Lawrence charged the U.S. Command with suppressing unfavorable news and Sinkovitz a sportscaster who followed Lawrence, endorsed the view.

Lawrence also faces a court-martial on charges of being "disrespectful in language" to a superior officer and failing to obey an order. This incident occurred five days before Lawrence made the censorship charges.

Admit Appalachia Program Slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal agency created five years ago to pull poverty-ridden Appalachia into the mainstream of American affluence acknowledges its impact so far has been "damn small, damn modest."

Half a decade after the Appalachian Regional Commission came to life the average Appalachian mountaineer's income remains well below that of other Americans. malnutrition still scars his children, employment is only a memory and subpar education preordains his offspring to failure.

But the commission, born from John F. Kennedy's incredulity at the poverty he saw during the 1960 West Virginia primary campaign and given life by President Lyndon B. Johnson, measures success in tiny gains.

"They were at the bottom of the barrel and it's difficult to turn that around," says Howard Bray, deputy director of the agency committed to improving the income, health and transportation of the 18 million people isolated in a 13-state area.

Bray pointed to development of the "hardware of new roads, hospitals, schools and sanitation facilities. But these have been damn small, damn modest."

But now for the sick there are hundreds more hospital beds and for the young there are vocational-technical schools. Dozens of communities have new sewage treatment plants and nearly 2,600 miles of new roads are in use, under construction or in planning stages.

And the administration Congress and representatives of the affected states have shown near-unanimous enthusiasm for seeing the effort through.

"Every single one of the governors of the Appalachian states, and we cover the whole range of the political spectrum, likes this program," West Virginia's Republican Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. told a House public works subcommittee last spring.

Congress responded by raising the commission's appropriation from $174.4 million for the year ending last June 30 to $253.4 million for the current fiscal year.

Yet the commission, authorized for a six-year period ending June 30, 1971, faces an uncertain future.

"There are several options," Bray says. "It dies, it is extended, it is modified. We'll be doing a lot of evaluating and soul-searching over the next 18 months."

Wounded Need Care

Everyone on the scene, and particularly the servicemen themselves, has the highest praise for the medical treatment of men wounded in Vietnam. Medics are on the spot in a matter of minutes and it is the rule rather than the exception that seriously wounded men are transported by helicopter to field hospitals in less than an hour.

After the men have received all the preliminary care they can be given and are sent home for rehabilitation, what then? The disconcerting testimony given by a number of witnesses before the Senate Subcommittee on Veterans Affairs is that, in many cases, there is little rehabilitative treatment for months.

Even the medical and professional treatment received at Veterans Administration hospitals has come under fire as too little and frequently delayed. If there is no substance to these charges, they should be easily disproved by the VA. If they are partly true it is a disgraceful situation demanding immediate correction. Hundreds of thousands of Americans have been wounded in Vietnam, many suffering from crippling afflictions. There is no reason why efforts such as rescued them from almost certain death on the battlefield cannot be employed under the vastly more favorable conditions of stateside rehabilitative hospitals. That is the least their country can do for them at this point in their lives.

As if things weren't bad enough for us humans, along comes a new anthropological assessment of man's relationship to the apes. We're told man and the apes may not be nearly as far apart as has been thought. Studies conducted at the University of California at Berkeley by two scientists suggest that the time of divergence by man and ape from the common ancestor they're supposed to have shared occurred only five million years ago, and not the 30 million held by some scientists. Of course, humans actually should not resent too deeply this more intimate cousinship to the ape, for the closer the scientists get man to the trees, the easier it should be to explain why he acts the way he does.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Sometimes I have a chill in the middle of the day. This happens even in a warm room and at times when I seem to be in perfect health. What causes this? Mr. O.D.W., Connecticut
Dear Mr. W.: I assume that you probably mean a chilly feeling rather than an actual chill. A sense of chilliness that is temporary has no great medical importance, especially if it is not accompanied by fever or other symptoms. A true chill, however, is of great significance because it means that some foreign substance or bacteria has suddenly found its way into the blood stream. This can happen with drugs and even a transfusion. Such chills are accompanied by chattering of the teeth and generalized shaking, associated with a sudden rise in temperature. Malaria is a good example of sporadic periods of invasion of the blood stream by foreign substances causing chills. Are the two soft spots on the top of the head of a newborn child dangerous to touch? Mrs. G.Y., Ohio
Dear Mrs. Y.: All normal children have these soft spots at birth. They are called fontanelles. The one in the front of the head is larger than the one in the back. As the child grows older, these fontanelles begin to close and finally the head is covered by solid bone after about sixteen months. The brain covering, even in these spaces, is firm and protective against all usual handling. "Newborn parents" should not be afraid of touching this area. We have been trying to have children for four years and now it is definite that I am pregnant. I am fearful that physical relationship with my husband may interfere with this pregnancy. I don't know how to handle the entire matter. Mrs. G.U.R., Utah
Dear Mrs. R.: It is understandable that you would be concerned about this. However, you do yourself and your husband a great injustice if you do not ask your physician this and all the other questions that a young prospective mother should know in order to make this a truly happy period in your life. It is surprising how quickly embarrassment disappears from a relationship with your doctor when you openly and

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Where would the $50 billion U.S. Savings Bond program be without payroll deduction plans in which purchases are made almost automatically? In even more serious trouble than it is now. Chronically ill at present, it could become critically ill. There is little enthusiasm among buyers to purchase bonds "over the counter" at banks. And, financially speaking, there's not an awful lot of pressure to retain those bonds already purchased. For the 13th consecutive month, therefore, redemption of bonds exceeded purchases last month, meaning that although $377 million of bonds were sold, $403 million were cashed in. In fact, during the past year many Americans buying bonds on payroll plans merely waited the necessary two months and redeemed their bonds for the same amount they had paid for them. The cost of such paper shuffling is incalculable.

The troubles of the bond program hardly were caused by any lack of patriotism among Americans. Nor are the meager promotional efforts by the government the primary cause of so many redemptions. The misfortunes of the bond program are directly related to the ill health of the economy, to inflation and rising interest rates specifically. The problem is one of the pocketbook rather than of allegiance to government. In 1966, for example, the economy was booming along, and inflation was still relatively minor. Interest rates were stable. Savings bond sales that year jumped 8.3 per cent and reached the highest level in 10 years. There were plenty of redemptions also, but the program produced a net inflow for the year of $299 million, an increase of $67 million in one year. In 1969, by contrast, inflation amounted to a figure between 5 and 6 per cent. Interest rates soared for various types of investments—but not for bonds.

And bond redemptions in 1969 exceeded purchases by $724 million. Why? For at least two reasons: With prices rising and paychecks not always following as fast, many Americans became strapped for cash. And those able to save money could realize higher interest returns elsewhere. In 1969, in fact, it often was more financially rewarding to buy the tax-exempt bonds of a sewer district than it was to purchase savings bonds.

Era Almost Gone

By BOB THOMAS

AP Television-Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Shed a tear for the movie musical. It's going, going, almost gone. The decline and near-disappearance of the musical can be cited as one of the major movie trends of 1970—and perhaps for years to come. A survey of future production discloses only two musicals definitely planned for this year. The pair: "Fiddler on the Roof," which Norman Jewison will film in eastern Europe for the Mirisch Brothers, and "Bedknobs and Broomsticks," starring Angela Lansbury, which Disney Studio hopes will be a box office successor to "Mary Poppins." A couple of decades ago, Hollywood was producing between 30 and 40 musicals a year. What happened?

They have been in decline for a decade. A major cause is expense. Musicals require large casts, long rehearsals and extended shooting periods. Nowadays it's almost impossible to film a major musical for less than $5 million, and many have cost $10 million and more. Another major factor is the lack of receptivity overseas. The English and the Japanese still like American musicals, but the Germans, French and Italians do not. And in many other parts of the world where the musical tradition is unknown, chances of success for a tune-film are scant. The trend away from the musical has been accentuated during the past year. Costly flops have depressed the fortunes of film companies: "Doctor Dolittle" and "Star!" at 20th Century-Fox; "Sweet Charity" at Universal. Two new releases are being eyed nervously: "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" by MGM and "Paint Your Wagon" by Paramount. Both were very expensive and received mixed reviews. Fox now has "Hello Dolly" in Snow-blocked roads prevented county schools from opening following the holiday vacations. City schools were open but absenteeism was high.

City Council approved the appropriation of $1,500 to install 250-watt bulbs in street lights in outlying areas of town to replace the 100 watt bulbs then in use. Until this time the larger bulbs were used only in lamps in the downtown section.

In the annual report of the Circleville fire department, Chief Talmer Wise recorded a list of unusual calls. These included watering the baseball diamond, rescuing a dog, driving a tramp from a shed and opening a sewer. The most unique call came from a resident who had treed a snake but could not figure how to get it. So he set fire to the tree. The blaze got out of control, burning a telephone pole and causing other damage.

Pickaway County Selective Service Board sent orders to all registrants under 26 at the time of classification to report for pre-induction physical examinations in January.

The grand art of story telling provided an entertaining evening for Circleville Rotarians. Guest speaker Ed Penisten, former newspaperman, provided a half hour of laughter for members.

A traveling hobo, Bert Huison, 62, received the honor of being the first occupant of the city jail in 1945.

Burglars did well when they broke into the Mecca cafe, West Main Street. The thieves took three cases of whiskey, four cartons of cigarettes, $25 in bills, and $50 in pennies.

On orders from War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, Circleville began a drastic program to conserve coal. Included in the list was a ban on all outdoor advertising using electricity produced from coal and a plea to homeowners, managers of offices, hotels and stores to permit temperatures to go no higher than 68 degrees. Railroads were further ordered to eliminate special and excursion trains from their schedules.

Just the thing for the young miss's wardrobe were bobby sox knitted with English rib in lustrous jewel shades or in bright decorative patterns.

Playing at the Grand Theater was the thrilling movie, "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," starring Van Johnson, Robert Walker and Spencer Tracy.

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of people already have bad consciences, although 1970 is only a week old.

They feel guilty, are shame-faced, and can hardly look their fellow man in the eye.

This is because they have already broken a raft of good resolutions they made just a week ago. Seeking to perfect themselves all at once, in a burst of rash enthusiasm they pledged themselves to high resolves that even a cautious angel in heaven would fear to vow.

If all your good resolutions are negative, they may be more harmful than helpful. You must balance them with positive resolutions. A negative resolution is one in which you declare you'll quit doing something that is wrong or bad for you. A positive resolution is one by which you pledge to do something that is good for you.

In any case, the resolution, negative or positive, must be one which is humanly possible for you to keep.

Here, for example, are some constructive negative resolutions you might start with:

To cease accepting free $1 cigars from total strangers.

To quit volunteering to act as cosigner on loans for office gamblers.

To give up the eating of pomegranates after midnight.

To refrain from using any toothbrush at home unless you are particularly sure it is your very own.

To stop ruining your wife's health as the result of taking her out on the town four or five nights a week.

To cease trying personally to reform members of the Mafia who you think may have gone a step too far.

To abstain from chewing ice cubes in church during Lent.

Now really, even though these good resolutions are negative, they aren't too hard to keep, are they? And the mere fact you haven't broken them could make you feel warm all over, couldn't it?

The same holds true for making good resolutions that are positive—ones by which you pledge yourselves to do something that will improve your life.

For example, you might vow to—

Praise your boss to his face instead of just circulating kind words about him behind his back.

Help your firm get out of the red by using just one paper towel, instead of seven, when drying your face in the office washroom.

Agree to lick the stamps for your wife's Christmas cards if she'll agree to go on carrying out the garbage throughout the year.

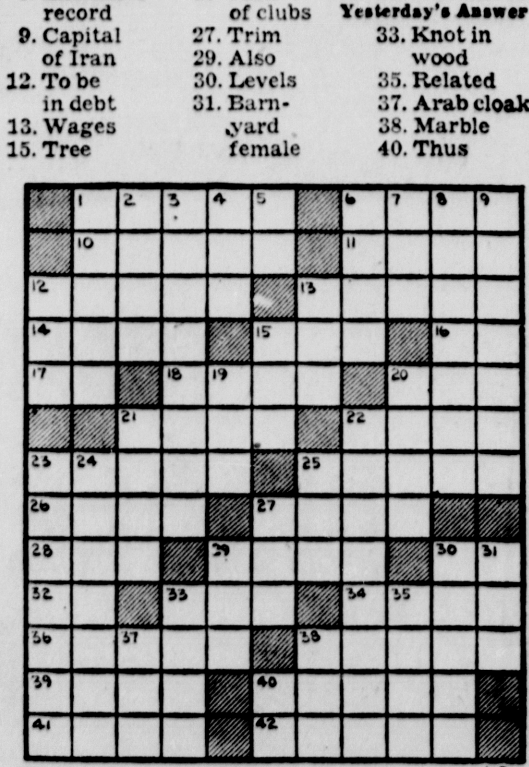

Get the idea? Any good resolution you make and keep, no matter how small, can't help but make you feel you're a better man when 1971 dawns.

Frank Sinatra, visiting the late Tallulah Bankhead in her apartment some years ago, asked her why there was a small flag at half mast on the mantelpiece. "It's for my poor old Giants," mourned Tallulah. "They've been mathematically eliminated from the pennant race," Sinatra, impressed, commented, "I didn't realize you were so interested in the national pastime." "Darling," Tallulah assured him, "I AM the national pastime."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Sometimes I have a chill in the middle of the day. This happens even in a warm room and at times when I seem to be in perfect health. What causes this?

Mr. O.D.W., Connecticut

Dear Mr. W.: I assume that you probably mean a chilly feeling rather than an actual chill. A sense of chilliness that is temporary has no great medical importance, especially if it is not accompanied by fever or other symptoms.

A true chill, however, is of great significance because it means that some foreign substance or bacteria has suddenly found its way into the blood stream. This can happen with drugs and even a transfusion. Such chills are accompanied by chattering of the teeth and generalized shaking, associated with a sudden rise in temperature. Malaria is a good example of sporadic periods of invasion of the blood stream by foreign substances causing chills.

Are the two soft spots on the top of the head of a newborn child dangerous to touch?

Mrs. G.Y., Ohio

Dear Mrs. Y.: All normal children have these soft spots at birth. They are called fontanelles. The one in the front of the head is larger than the one in the back.

As the child grows older, these fontanelles begin to close and finally the head is covered by solid bone after about sixteen months.

The brain covering, even in these spaces, is firm and protective against all usual handling. "Newborn parents" should not be afraid of touching this area.

We have been trying to have children for four years and now it is definite that I am pregnant. I am fearful that physical relationship with my husband may interfere with this pregnancy. I don't know how to handle the entire matter.

Dear Mrs. R.: It is understandable that you would be concerned about this. However, you do yourself and your husband a great injustice if you do not ask your physician this and all the other questions that a young prospective mother should know in order to make this a truly happy period in your life.

It is surprising how quickly embarrassment disappears from a relationship with your doctor when you openly and frankly discuss an intimate problem. In most instances, the doctor volunteers this information as he does all other facts about pregnancy. Occasionally, it is overlooked by the stress of time. Certainly there is nothing to be ashamed about, especially in this enlightened era when almost all things can be spoken about with complete dignity.

The answer to your question must be an individual one. There can be no universal answer, particularly in those women whose pregnancies may be threatened.

Under normal circumstances my blood pressure is neither high nor low. During a recent examination by a strange doctor for life insurance purposes, my blood pressure shot up and I was temporarily rejected. Does this happen frequently?

Mr. P.M., Maine

Dear Mr. N.: This is not an unusual occurrence and has no special meaning. During periods of stress, strain and tension a temporary rise of blood pressure can occur. It returns to normal when the stress is removed.

Keep a first aid kit in the trunk of your car.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Where would the $50 billion U.S. Savings Bond program be without payroll deduction plans in which purchases are made almost automatically?

In even more serious trouble than it is now. Chronically ill at present, it could become critically ill.

There is little enthusiasm among buyers to purchase bonds "over the counter" at banks. And, financially speaking, there's not an awful lot of pressure to retain those bonds already purchased.

For the 13th consecutive month, therefore, redemption of bonds exceeded purchases last month, meaning that although $377 million of bonds were sold, $403 million were cashed in.

In fact, during the past year many Americans buying bonds on payroll plans merely waited the necessary two months and redeemed their bonds for the same amount they had paid for them.

The cost of such paper shuffling is incalculable.

The troubles of the bond program hardly were caused by any lack of patriotism among Americans. Nor are the meager promotional efforts by the government the primary cause of so many redemptions.

The misfortunes of the bond program are directly related to the ill health of the economy, to inflation and rising interest rates specifically. The problem is one of the pocketbook rather than of allegiance to government.

In 1966, for example, the economy was booming along, and inflation was still relatively minor. Interest rates were stable. Savings bond sales that year jumped 8.3 per cent and reached the highest level in 10 years.

There were plenty of redemptions also, but the program produced a net inflow for the year of $299 million, an increase of $67 million in one year.

In 1969, by contrast, inflation amounted to a figure between 5 and 6 per cent. Interest rates soared for various types of investments—but not for bonds.

And bond redemptions in 1969 exceeded purchases by $724 million.

Why? For at least two reasons:

With prices rising and paychecks not always following as fast, many Americans became strapped for cash. And those able to save money could realize higher interest returns elsewhere.

In 1969, in fact, it often was more financially rewarding to buy the tax-exempt bonds of a sewer district than it was to purchase savings bonds.

Era Almost Gone

By BOB THOMAS

AP Television-Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Shed a tear for the movie musical. It's going, going, almost gone.

The decline and near-disappearance of the musical can be cited as one of the major movie trends of 1970—and perhaps for years to come. A survey of future production discloses only two musicals definitely planned for this year.

The pair: "Fiddler on the Roof," which Norman Jewison will film in eastern Europe for the Mirisch Brothers, and "Bedknobs and Broomsticks," starring Angela Lansbury, which Disney Studio hopes will be a box office successor to "Mary Poppins."

A couple of decades ago, Hollywood was producing between 30 and 40 musicals a year. What happened?

They have been in decline for a decade. A major cause is expense. Musicals require large casts, long rehearsals and extended shooting periods. Nowadays it's almost impossible to film a major musical for less than $5 million, and many have cost $10 million and more.

Another major factor is the lack of receptivity overseas. The English and the Japanese still like American musicals, but the Germans, French and Italians do not. And in many other parts of the world where the musical tradition is unknown, chances of success for a tune film are scant.

The trend away from the musical has been accentuated during the past year. Costly flops have depressed the fortunes of film companies: "Doctor Dolittle" and "Star!" at 20th Century-Fox; "Sweet Charity" at Universal. Two new releases are being eyed nervously: "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" by MGM and "Paint Your Wagon" by Paramount. Both were very expensive and received mixed reviews.

25 YEARS AGO

Snow-blocked roads prevented county schools from opening following the holiday vacations. City schools were open but absenteeism was high.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pence were the parents of the first baby born in Circleville. The child, a girl, was born 5:10 a.m. New Year's Day.

City Council approved the appropriation of $1,500 to install 250-watt bulbs in street lights in outlying areas of town to replace the 100 watt bulbs then in use. Until this time the larger bulbs were used only in lamps in the downtown section.

In the annual report of the Circleville fire department, Chief Talmer Wise recorded a list of unusual calls. These included watering the baseball diamond, rescuing a dog, driving a tramp from a shed and opening a sewer. The most unique call came from a resident who had treed a snake but could not figure how to get it. So he set fire to the tree. The blaze got out of control, burning a telephone pole and causing other damage.

Pickaway County Selective Service Board sent orders to all registrants under 26 at the time of classification to report for pre-induction physical examinations in January.

The grand art of story telling provided an entertaining evening for Circleville Rotarians. Guest speaker Ed Penisten, former newspaperman, provided a half hour of laughter for members.

A traveling hobo, Bert Huison, 62, received the honor of being the first occupant of the city jail in 1945.

Burglars did well when they broke into the Mecca cafe, West Main Street. The thieves took three cases of whiskey, four cartons of cigarettes, $25 in bills, and $50 in pennies.

On orders from War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, Circleville began a drastic program to conserve coal. Included in the list was a ban on all outdoor advertising using electricity produced from coal and a plea to homeowners, managers of offices, hotels and stores to permit temperatures to go no higher than 68 degrees. Railroads were further ordered to eliminate special and excursion trains from their schedules.

Just the thing for the young miss's wardrobe were bobby sox knitted with English rib in lustrous jewel shades or in bright decorative patterns.

Playing at the Grand Theater was the thrilling movie, "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," starring Van Johnson, Robert Walker and Spencer Tracy.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this letter in near desperation. My husband and I have been married for three years. We have a 17-month-old baby.

I suppose I should tell you that I am inclined to be quite heavy. Well, when I became pregnant I put on 50 pounds. I am not entirely to blame for this because I had a lot of faith in my O.B. (a woman) and she isn't very strict about her patients' diets. Anyway, to make a long story short, after I had the baby I tried to lose some weight, but haven't been doing very well.

The problem is that my husband hasn't even come near me since I've had the baby. He admits that he is staying away in an attempt to punish me. I think this is just terrible. I am 22 years old, and I'm only a nurse. I need love and affection, Abby. I love him very much and he says he loves me, too, but until I lose those 50 pounds—nothing doing! So what should I do?

Ray Appeal Turned Down By High Court

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Supreme Court rejected Thursday an appeal by James Earl Ray for a new trial in the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

In a unanimous opinion, the court said that Ray "willfully, knowingly and intelligently and with the advice of competent counsel entered a plea of guilty to murder in the first degree by lying in wait."

Ray pleaded guilty last March 10 to the 1968 slaying of King in Memphis. Criminal Court Judge W. Preston Battle sentenced Ray to 99 years in state prison.

The high court's opinion, read by Special Judge Erby L. Jenkins, said, "This court cannot sit idly by while deepening disorder, disrespect for the Constitution's authority, and mounting violence and murder stalk the land and let waiting justice sleep."

Battle died 21 days after sentencing Ray and Shelby County officials later found in his court records a letter from Ray, seeking a new trial on grounds he was not adequately represented at his trial.

The Supreme Court said that Ray "was represented by privately retained able counsel."

In seeking a Supreme Court review of the case, Ray's lawyers cited a state law which says that if a trial judge dies when an appeal is pending, a new trial must be granted.

The Supreme Court said that Ray "was represented by privately retained able counsel."

In seeking a Supreme Court review of the case, Ray's lawyers cited a state law which says that if a trial judge dies when an appeal is pending, a new trial must be granted.

But the state cited another law that says a person who pleads guilty waives all rights to appeal or to a new trial.

The state's contention was upheld last year by both Criminal Court Judge Arthur Faquin of Memphis and the State Court of Criminal Appeals. Ray's lawyers then sought a state Supreme Court review.

Monkeys Don't Have Rights, Court Decides

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal judge ruled monkeys don't have constitutional rights as he dismissed the suit of six prisoners who sought to enjoin the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from sending any more monkeys into space.

Judge Algernon Butler of U.S. District Court said the suit was "wholly without merit and entirely frivolous."

The convicts said they could understand how a monkey feels being confined to a spacecraft. They also said that Bonny, the NASA monkey which became sick on a space trip and later died, had been subjected to "cruel and unusual punishment."

Judge Butler said the suit was "an attempt at abuse of process. We are not aware of any court, state or federal, that has included monkeys in the category of homo sapiens whose rights are guaranteed by the Constitution and Bill of Rights."

Thieu Reiterates South Viet Stand

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu reiterated Thursday that South Vietnam is prepared to discuss a cease-fire with the enemy and to accept Viet Cong participation in elections to settle the war.

But in a lengthy televised report to the nation Thieu charged that the enemy is intent on "savage ambitions" and insists on imposing a coalition government on South Vietnam.

Thieu said there have been "no results" from 48 sessions of the Paris peace talks and said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong agreed to them only because they wanted bombing of North Vietnam halted.

Dayton State Hospital Chief Raps Charges

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The superintendent of the Dayton State Hospital agreed Thursday that the institution's funds were inadequate, but criticized threat of court action against it.

Montgomery County Prosecutor Lee C. Falke threatened Thursday to take court action if major changes are not made in hospital procedures. He also termed hospital conditions "deplorable."

Supt. M. T. Farukie challenged the prosecutor to substantiate his charges and called other accusations "ridiculous" and "unworthy of answering."

"I'll listen to his (Falke's) opinion when he has accreditation with the Department of Mental Health and Hygiene like I do," Farukie said.

Falke charged that a 77-year-old nurse who is not a registered pharmacist had been preparing prescriptions when the pharmacist is off duty.

Falke also said the hospital staff is too small.

At times, he said, there is only one attendant on duty for every 150 patients, no fire evacuation precautions exist and fire safety violations have not been corrected since first reported in June 1969.

"To me," Farukie said, "it is a miracle that we don't have a catastrophe. The only way I can explain it is the dedication of the people who work here."

Vein Grafts Said Success

TORONTO (AP) — A Toronto brain surgeon has described a new method of improving blood circulation in the brains of stroke victims by replacing blocked arteries in the head with grafted leg veins.

Dr. William Loughheed of Toronto General Hospital said that early last month a 54-year-old Toronto woman underwent such an operation. She has since recovered, he said.

Two operating teams headed by Loughheed used new surgical equipment in a 12-hour operation on the woman Dec. 5, the surgeon said in a report this week.

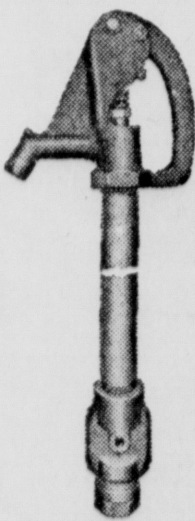

He said a leg vein section was used to bypass a blocked carotid artery just above the neck. The vein was inserted into a small cut above the blocked section of the artery. Loughheed related, then threaded between the skull and the scalp and connected to the artery in the neck below the blockage, restoring normal blood flow.

Loughheed cautioned that the operation would not cure paralysis resulting from strokes, but said it could prevent patients from having additional strokes which could paralyze them further or kill them.

In a unanimous opinion, the court said that Ray "willfully, knowingly and intelligently and with the advice of competent counsel entered a plea of guilty to murder in the first degree by lying in wait."

Ray pleaded guilty last March 10 to the 1968 slaying of King in Memphis. Criminal Court Judge W. Preston Battle sentenced Ray to 99 years in state prison.

The high court's opinion, read by Special Judge Erby L. Jenkins, said, "This court cannot sit idly by while deepening disorder, disrespect for the Constitution's authority, and mounting violence and murder stalk the land and let waiting justice sleep."

Battle died 21 days after sentencing Ray and Shelby County officials later found in his court records a letter from Ray, seeking a new trial on grounds he was not adequately represented at his trial.

The Supreme Court said that Ray "was represented by privately retained able counsel."

In seeking a Supreme Court review of the case, Ray's lawyers cited a state law which says that if a trial judge dies when an appeal is pending, a new trial must be granted.

But the state cited another law that says a person who pleads guilty waives all rights to appeal or to a new trial.

The state's contention was upheld last year by both Criminal Court Judge Arthur Faquin of Memphis and the State Court of Criminal Appeals. Ray's lawyers then sought a state Supreme Court review.

Monkeys Don't Have Rights, Court Decides

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal judge ruled monkeys don't have constitutional rights as he dismissed the suit of six prisoners who sought to enjoin the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from sending any more monkeys into space.

Judge Algernon Butler of U.S. District Court said the suit was "wholly without merit and entirely frivolous."

The convicts said they could understand how a monkey feels being confined to a spacecraft. They also said that Bonny, the NASA monkey which became sick on a space trip and later died, had been subjected to "cruel and unusual punishment."

Judge Butler said the suit was "an attempt at abuse of process. We are not aware of any court, state or federal, that has included monkeys in the category of homo sapiens whose rights are guaranteed by the Constitution and Bill of Rights."

Thieu Reiterates South Viet Stand

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu reiterated Thursday that South Vietnam is prepared to discuss a cease-fire with the enemy and to accept Viet Cong participation in elections to settle the war.

But in a lengthy televised report to the nation Thieu charged that the enemy is intent on "savage ambitions" and insists on imposing a coalition government on South Vietnam.

Thieu said there have been "no results" from 48 sessions of the Paris peace talks and said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong agreed to them only because they wanted bombing of North Vietnam halted.

Dayton State Hospital Chief Raps Charges

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The superintendent of the Dayton State Hospital agreed Thursday that the institution's funds were inadequate, but criticized threat of court action against it.

Montgomery County Prosecutor Lee C. Falke threatened Thursday to take court action if major changes are not made in hospital procedures. He also termed hospital conditions "deplorable."

Supt. M. T. Farukie challenged the prosecutor to substantiate his charges and called other accusations "ridiculous" and "unworthy of answering."

"I'll listen to his (Falke's) opinion when he has accreditation with the Department of Mental Health and Hygiene like I do," Farukie said.

Falke charged that a 77-year-old nurse who is not a registered pharmacist had been preparing prescriptions when the pharmacist is off duty.

Falke also said the hospital staff is too small.

At times, he said, there is only one attendant on duty for every 150 patients, no fire evacuation precautions exist and fire safety violations have not been corrected since first reported in June 1969.

"To me," Farukie said, "it is a miracle that we don't have a catastrophe. The only way I can explain it is the dedication of the people who work here."

Vein Grafts Said Success

TORONTO (AP) — A Toronto brain surgeon has described a new method of improving blood circulation in the brains of stroke victims by replacing blocked arteries in the head with grafted leg veins.

Dr. William Loughheed of Toronto General Hospital said that early last month a 54-year-old Toronto woman underwent such an operation. She has since recovered, he said.

Two operating teams headed by Loughheed used new surgical equipment in a 12-hour operation on the woman Dec. 5, the surgeon said in a report this week.

He said a leg vein section was used to bypass a blocked carotid artery just above the neck. The vein was inserted into a small cut above the blocked section of the artery, Loughheed related, then threaded between the skull and the scalp and connected to the artery in the neck below the blockage, restoring normal blood flow.

Loughheed cautioned that the operation would not cure paralysis resulting from strokes, but said it could prevent patients from having additional strokes which could paralyze them further or kill them.

St. Philip's Jr. Music Club Plans Recital

St. Philip's Junior Music Club, directed by Mrs. Paul Teegardin, met Wednesday evening in the library of St. Philip's Episcopal Church.

President, Cynthia Pike, presided over the meeting with vice president, Duanne Hart, acting as secretary for Ellen Palm. The club voted to sponsor an organ recital to be played by a graduate student of Ohio State University.

Members then moved to the choir stalls in the chancel of the church where Mrs. Teegardin conducted a study of Anglican chanting with Elizabeth Good acting as organist. The group worked on the Venite Exultemus Domino preparatory to their performance of this chant at the St. Philip's recital, Jan. 18.

Club members will attend an organ concert Sunday in Mershon Auditorium at Ohio State University. The concert begins at 3 p.m. and members should meet at St. Philip's by 1:30. Any young people who are interested in the club's concert attendance project are welcome and may contact Cynthia Pike or Mrs. Teegardin regarding schedules and arrangements.

Another difficult decision in TV-watching looms tonight—whether to watch the first two-hour feature made for broadcast by CBS's film division, "Sole Survivor," or to buckle into NBC's "Name of the Game," and see good and noble Van Johnson play an absolute rotter, a crooked prize fight manager.

"Sole Survivor" is a fantasy that starts with the discovery of a World War II bomber in the African desert with the ghosts of the crew helping reveal the living crew member who caused the crash.

CBS executives may want the "Merv Griffin Show" to move

The generally sharp tone of the comedy, the definite political slant of some of the commentary—including some Mort Sahl cracks—gave the program plenty of spice and may even draw some complaints. But at least it was stimulating in spots and a nice change from the bland and predictable comedy that TV variety shows are showing out these days.

It was impossible to do anything comprehensive on the ABC special, but there were some wonderful moments, like the rerun of an old film of Mike Nichols and Elaine May in their sketch about the bereaved man trying to arrange a $65 funeral which, it turned out, did not include coffin or hearse.

Newhart in his opening monologue had a wry summary of the things he found people had laughed at in the 60s: "Sin and booze, sudden death, naked people, police, vice presidents and effeminate men."

He replayed an inspired bit from a Carol Burnett show in which she started hearing voices accusing her of everything from gray laundry to bad breath. The Committee, an improvisational group, had a scathing spoof of TV giveaway shows, one called "Greed."

NEW YORK (AP) — "A Last Laugh at the 60's," with Bob Newhart presiding, was a noble and occasionally hilarious effort to survey the comedy of a decade in one slim hour Thursday night.

It was impossible to do anything comprehensive on the ABC special, but there were some wonderful moments, like the rerun of an old film of Mike Nichols and Elaine May in their sketch about the bereaved man trying to arrange a $65 funeral which, it turned out, did not include coffin or hearse.

Newhart in his opening monologue had a wry summary of the things he found people had laughed at in the 60s: "Sin and booze, sudden death, naked people, police, vice presidents and effeminate men."

He replayed an inspired bit from a Carol Burnett show in which she started hearing voices accusing her of everything from gray laundry to bad breath. The Committee, an improvisational group, had a scathing spoof of TV giveaway shows, one called "Greed."

The generally sharp tone of the comedy, the definite political slant of some of the commentary—including some Mort Sahl cracks—gave the program plenty of spice and may even draw some complaints. But at least it was stimulating in spots and a nice change from the bland and predictable comedy that TV variety shows are showing out these days.

St. Philip's Junior Music Club, directed by Mrs. Paul Teegardin, met Wednesday evening in the library of St. Philip's Episcopal Church.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Thomas D. Shepard, a former Los Angeles city councilman, has been sentenced to 1 to 14 years in prison on a bribery charge.

Shepard, 44, a Van Nuys businessman, was convicted in November of accepting an $11,000 bribe from developer Joseph Aronoff in connection with a 1964 Canoga Park zoning case.

Shepard had contended the money was a loan but the prosecution said he made no attempt to repay any of it until an investigation.

NEW YORK (AP) — "A Last Laugh at the 60's," with Bob Newhart presiding, was a noble and occasionally hilarious effort to survey the comedy of a decade in one slim hour Thursday night.

It was impossible to do anything comprehensive on the ABC special, but there were some wonderful moments, like the rerun of an old film of Mike Nichols and Elaine May in their sketch about the bereaved man trying to arrange a $65 funeral which, it turned out, did not include coffin or hearse.

OFFER REJECTED — Speaking at a news conference in Columbus, Ohio, Texas computer magnate-millionaire H. He visited Southeast Asia recently in an unsuccessful effort to deliver Christmas gifts to American POWs.

Constitution Revision Group Sworn In

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission Thursday was formally launched on what could be a nine-year study of Ohio's 118-year-old constitution.

Eight of the commission's 12 legislative members were sworn in by Ohio Supreme Court Justice C. William O'Neill in the Senate Chambers. Four were absent.

Another difficult decision in TV-watching looms tonight—whether to watch the first two-hour feature made for broadcast by CBS's film division, "Sole Survivor," or to buckle into NBC's "Name of the Game," and see good and noble Van Johnson play an absolute rotter, a crooked prize fight manager.

"Sole Survivor" is a fantasy that starts with the discovery of a World War II bomber in the African desert with the ghosts of the crew helping reveal the living crew member who caused the crash.

Child Abuse 'Tradition?'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — In most cases a parent who abuses a child is just carrying on a family tradition, says a psychiatrist.

"Almost without exception, the abused child is reared as the parent was reared," Dr. Denise Quinn, psychiatry instructor at University of Utah College of Medicine, told a recent seminar.

Dr. Quinn, added: "Paradoxically, the parent often loves the child, but the style of child rearing, or the child-parent relationship is faulty."

She said the abusive parent often makes immature or unrealistic demands on the child.

"There is a role reversal," Dr. Quinn said. "The parent often looks to the child for love and the child is incapable of returning such demands adequately."

Swaying on a limb outside my kitchen, a bird flapped his sleek black wings and curved his throat in a burst of pure beauty.

"Watch out!" I wanted to cry. For over by the woodpile Tabby crouched, carved in predatory silence. Stone-like she stared, as the bird warbled, and even after the songster flashed off in a streak, she sat impassively.

How like our Tabby we humans sometimes are. Caught in the frenzy of making a living, stalemated with problems, we look indifferently at our world. Forgetting that God reveals Himself in simple ways, we overlook the laughter of a child, the smile of a stranger, and the flaming colors of our landscape.

Your church can show you how to find joy in life again. Within its fellowship you can learn the happiness which comes from loving God and serving Him.

Patient Tabby

Brudzinski Nears Quarter Century Mark

Band, Choir Members Set For Ohio Music Festival

STEVE BRUDZINSKI

By GALE MCNELLEY
Steve L. Brudzinski is being honored by the journalism class this week because of his years of service to CHS. He has taught longer in the high school than any other member of the faculty. Brudzinski resides at 220 Walnut Creek Pike with his wife Jean, who is a math teacher at Logan Elm, and his three children.

He was graduated from Fremont High School and received a B. S. degree at Bowling Green State University. At the university, Brudzinski was inducted into the Sports Hall of Fame for his outstanding achievements of coaching and playing football.

In the fall of 1945, after returning from service, he became a teacher at CHS. He now teaches beginning and advanced woods and architectural and mechanical drawing.

"The reason I wanted a teacher is because I became a coach. In order to be a coach, I had to be a teacher, so I became both."

Brudzinski was a football coach for 12 years. During those years he gave CHS three SCOL champion teams and two district champion teams. He is now the CHS golf coach, a position he has held for the past 15 years. The team won one state championship in golf and several central golf tournaments under his guidance.

In the summer, Brudzinski works in the construction business. Last summer, he built a family room on his home.

"My philosophy of life is that anything that is worth doing is worth doing well — may it be in school, at home or at work."

Students Start Class Projects

By MARCIA PONTIOUS and RICK WITHERS

With the new year in full swing, teachers have some special projects in store.

In the English department, Mrs. Velma Eberly notes that her junior students are going to read Hamlet and give special reports.

Walter Sale has his students working on research papers, in which they must use the library for references. They will also read "Our Town" and three other plays on their own.

Mrs. Helen Wachs' students had a special "story telling" program which she hopes will meet the talents of the individual and give them practice in public speaking and oral English.

Allan Shull, DECA adviser, notes that his students are preparing for district competition in February.

Mrs. Winifred Breegles' classes are going to do special reports on Caesar and the happenings in Gaul.

Don Poling's driver education classes visited traffic court.

Mrs. Lois Brobst's typing classes are busy figuring out typing puzzles. Office practice girls have finished their personal portfolios.

William Brooke, biology teacher and Science Club adviser, plans to take the Science Club to Niagara Falls. Mr. Brooke also hopes to take two students to the Central Ohio Science Fair.

New Decade Promises New Challenges

By BENNY LUNA

Resolutions have been made and maybe broken for the 70's. The 1960's have come and gone as a new decade begins. Bigger and better ideas will bud and bloom to make 1970 a better year of living.

Many things will happen to our nation this year. New laws will be made. Apollo trips to the moon will continue to get more complicated. The Vietnam war may stop, continue or maybe get out-of-hand. Another draft lottery is to be held in November, taking more of America's young men. Prices and the cost of living will continue to rise. Many new challenges face the nation. The best resolution that the United States could make would be one of peace for all the world.

Each individual must make his own decision of what 1970 will really be like. Hope and faith must be maintained to face the coming year ahead.

Every person must meet the challenges of 1970 and do what he thinks best in each situation. The 1960's brought many good things and some tragic experiences, but let the 70's bring brighter exploits.

Students Survey School Expenses

By PENNY ARLEDGE

A recent survey of Circleville schools on different statistics was completed. Did you know that...

The cost of a new desk was $22?

A new text book costs approximately $6?

The total cost of text books this year was $15,000?

18,000 to 20,000 text books are issued in a year?

Seven buses travel over 500 miles a day?

The light bill for one month was $2,250?

The gas bill for one month is about $4,500?

The water bill in a month's time was $425?

Approximately 2,200 lunches are served in one day?

53,432 half pints of milk were bought in November?

Custodians use approximately $5,000 worth of cleaning supplies in a year?

There are 140 teachers employed in the Circleville school system?

Circleville, Westfall To Top Foes In Weekend Contests

By BILLY THOMAS

Resuming after a long lay-off this is the way things stand from here:

Circleville to upset Greenfield. This one is the battle of the Tiger in the SCOL. McClain is tied for first with a 3-1 record but the Roundtowners hustle should win it for them. With impressive wins over WCH and MT, Greenfield is better "on paper", but look for CHS to put it all together in this one.

Laurelville over Logan Elm. Balance is the key to this one as the Wildcats have six capable double-figure scoring threats. Braves lost a couple of tough ones last week and could be Emotionally Ready, but the odds are that Laurelville will continue its winning ways.

Westfall over Piketon. Mustangs should roll over the enemy from Pike County. Sticky man-to-man defense could be trouble for Westfall. Their double-barreled threat of Greg Bigam and Bill Blair should burn the nets for a tidy sum.

Teays Valley over Dublin.

Brudzinski Band, Choir Members Set For Ohio Music Festival

STEVE BRUDZINSKI

By GALE MCNELLEY

Steve L. Brudzinski is being honored by the journalism class this week because of his years of service to CHS. He has taught longer in the high school than any other member of the faculty. Brudzinski resides at 220 Walnut Creek Pike with his wife Jean, who is a math teacher at Logan Elm, and his three children.

He was graduated from Fremont High School and received a B. S. degree at Bowling Green State University. At the university, Brudzinski was inducted into the Sports Hall of Fame for his outstanding achievements of coaching and playing football.

In the fall of 1945, after returning from service, he became a teacher at CHS. He now teaches beginning and advanced woods and architectural and mechanical drawing.

"The reason I became a teacher is because I wanted to be a coach. In order to be a coach, I had to be a teacher, so I became both."

Brudzinski was a football coach for 12 years. During those years he gave CHS three SCOL champion teams and two district champion teams. He is now the CHS golf coach, a position he has held for the past 15 years. The team won one state championship in golf and several central golf tournaments under his guidance.

In the summer, Brudzinski works in the construction business. Last summer, he built a family room on his home.

"My philosophy of life is that anything that is worth doing is worth doing well — may it be in school, at home or at work."

Students Start Class Projects

By MARCIA PONTIOUS and RICK WITHERS

With the new year in full swing, teachers have some special projects in store.

In the English department, Mrs. Velma Eberly notes that her junior students are going to read Hamlet and give special reports.

Walter Sale has his students working on research papers, in which they must use the library for references. They will also read "Our Town" and three other plays on their own.

Mrs. Helen Wachs' students had a special "story telling" program which she hopes will meet the talents of the individual and give them practice in public speaking and oral English.

Allan Shull, DECA adviser, notes that his students are preparing for district competition in February.

Mrs. Winifred Breegles' classes are going to do special reports on Caesar and the happenings in Gaul.

Don Poling's driver education classes visited traffic court.

Mrs. Lois Brobst's typing classes are busy figuring out typing puzzles. Office practice girls have finished their personal portfolios.

William Brooke, biology teacher and Science Club adviser, plans to take the Science Club to Niagara Falls. Mr. Brooke also hopes to take two students to the Central Ohio Science Fair.

New Decade Promises New Challenges

By BENNY LUNA

Resolutions have been made and maybe broken for the 70's. The 1960's have come and gone as a new decade begins. Bigger and better ideas will bud and bloom to make 1970 a better year of living.

Many things will happen to our nation this year. New laws will be made. Apollo trips to the moon will continue to get more complicated. The Vietnam war may stop, continue or maybe get out-of-hand. Another draft lottery is to be held in November, taking more of America's young men. Prices and the cost of living will continue to rise. Many new challenges face the nation. The best resolution that the United States could make would be one of peace for all the world.

Each individual must make his own decision of what 1970 will really be like. Hope and faith must be maintained to face the coming year ahead. Every person must meet the challenges of 1970 and do what he thinks best in each situation. The 1960's brought many good things and some tragic experiences, but let the 70's bring brighter exploits.

Students Survey School Expenses

By PENNY ARLEDGE

A recent survey of Circleville schools on different statistics was completed. Did you know that...

The cost of a new desk was $22?

A new text book costs approximately $6?

The total cost of text books this year was $15,600?

18,000 to 20,000 text books are issued in a year?

Seven buses travel over 500 miles a day?

The light bill for one month was $2,250?

The gas bill for one month is about $4,500?

The water bill in a month's time was $425?

Approximately 2,200 lunches are served in one day?

53,432 half pints of milk were bought in November?

Custodians use approximately $5,000 worth of cleaning supplies in a year?

There are 140 teachers employed in the Circleville school system?

Circleville, Westfall To Top Foes In Weekend Contests

By BILLY THOMAS

Resuming after a long lay-off this is the way things stand from here:

Circleville to upset Greenfield. This one is the battle of the Tiger in the SCOL. McClain is tied for first with a 3-1 record but the Roundowners hustle should win it for them. With impressive wins over WCH and MT, Greenfield is better "on paper," but look for CHS to put it all together in this one.

Laurelville over Logan Elm. Balance is the key to this one as the Wildcats have six capable double-figure scoring threats. Braves lost a couple of tough ones last week and could be Emotionally Ready, but the odds are that Laurelville will continue its winning ways.

Westfall over Piketon. Mustangs should roll over the enemy from Pike County. Sticky man-to-man defense could be trouble for Westfall. Greg Bigam and Bill Blair should burn the nets for a tidy sum.

Teays Valley over Dublin.

Vikings are currently in contention for Metro-league crown and that in itself should be enough incentive for a TV victory. Dale Lambert, leading scorer in the area, should puncture the Shamrock defense for another excellent game and a Teays Valley win.

Elsewhere, Circleville over Franklin Heights; Adena over Westfall; Zane Trace over Paint Valley.

Kapp Almost Forgotten Man Despite Amazing Record

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — After 10 professional football seasons, they still called Joe Kapp a rookie quarterback.

Peacock Jones of Los Angeles tagged the Minnesota Vikings quarterback with that line in 1968 after the Rams trounced Kapp and Co. 31-3.

But Kapp finally made it to the top with a flourish in 1969 as he led the Vikings to the National Football League championship and into Sunday's Super Bowl against the Kansas City Chiefs.

Now, Kapp again is almost the forgotten man. Chiefs quarterback Len Dawson is getting most of the attention in New Orleans on the heels of an NBC report that Dawson would be questioned in connection with recent gambling arrests.

Kapp, however, still causes commotion, especially when newsmen swarm around him to ask about flutter passes and reckless running.

"I don't think my passes flutter," he says with a raspy friendliness. "I think I throw pretty good. I can zip them. And I'm not a scrambler. I'm a passer first. A scrambler goes back with the run in the back of his head."

"I only run when I have to. I only called my number about 10 times this season, and many of those were to run out the clock, or when I sneaked. The others were on broken plays or when the receivers were recovered."

Kapp ran for the winning touchdown in a 23-20 Western Conference playoff victory over Los Angeles after setting it up with a scramble.

In a 27-7 NFL title victory over Cleveland, the 31-year-old ran into the running back he was trying to hand off to, but kept the ball and bulled his way seven yards into the end zone.

"I have seen some very beautiful quarterbacks," said Kapp, who played eight seasons in the Canadian Football League before joining Minnesota in 1957. "I guess I'm not as graceful out everybody has to do the job anyway he can."

His teammates say he practices like he plays. In preparing for Cleveland in a passing drill without linemen, Kapp went back to pass and couldn't find a receiver. He smiled meekly and gingerly stepped across the line on a simulated Kapp Keeper.

On the next play, he barked out the signals:

"Touchdown, hut, hut, hut."

Michigan Golf Tourney Fiasco Still Unsettled

By LARRY PALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — A co-sponsor of last September's abortive Michigan Golf Classic says he is still involved in "the very unromantic job of picking up the pieces."

Phil Lachman, a Detroit trophy manufacturer, shared the sponsorship of the $100,000 tournament with businessman John Brennan. But at the completion of the tourney, won by Larry Ziegler, they announced there was no money available to pay the golfers.

"I'd say we hope to lock things up within 30 days or so," Lachman said Thursday.

Several days after the tournament ended Sept. 7, Lachman called a news conference to explain the fiasco. He put most of the blame on tournament director Marshall Chambers who Lachman called "a terrific smoothie."

The Tournament Players Division of the Professional Golfers Association later said it would provide $50,000 from its general fund to pay players half of what they were entitled. First prize in the event, held in Walled Lake, Mich., was $20,000.

Lachman was asked if the ABA has been reimbursed any of the money.

"I don't have any comment on that," he replied.

"The first thing we did was pay off all the little people so they wouldn't be hurt," he said, referring to those who held minor jobs during the tournament.

"By far the majority of creditors have been taken care of or have been given an understanding of what to expect," Lachman added. "Most of the local creditors have been very fair and patient about it."

Junior High Cagers Lose To Lancaster

Failure to convert at the foul line hurt the Circleville Junior High Basketball team as they lost a close one Thursday to Lancaster 43-39.

Playing on the Lancaster home court the little Tigers made a poor showing at the charity stripe making only 7 of 18 attempts.

Circleville trailed at the end of the first period 17-13 but rallied to take a halftime lead 24-22.

The little Tigers maintained a 33-29 lead at the end of the third stanza but had a poor fourth quarter scoring six points while Ewing racked up 14 to take the fray 43-39.

Brian Barthelmus paced the Tiger Cubs with 16-points. Perry Hoskins contributed eight, Dave Mahalik had seven, John Ankrom four, Mike Speakman two and Robin Martin had two to complete the Circleville scoring.

Gelpin and Altup led the Ewing Juniors with 13-counters each while Burney added 12.

The Circleville squad will travel to Lancaster Saturday Tuesday and game time will be 4:45 p.m.

John Bateman, catcher for the Montreal Expos, is a native of Killeen, Tex., home of Orville Moody, 1969 U. S. Open golf champion.

Southern Cagers Pacing Sport

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
College basketball is alive and well in the South. Oh, boy, is it ever.

Six of the nation's top ten teams are from that region—and Thursday night, Davidson upheld the tradition of the South by embarrassing Virginia Military Institute 95-52.

Davidson is just one of a basketful of southern teams having outstanding seasons. The others include Kentucky, South Carolina and North Carolina, ranked Nos. 2, 3 and 4 respectively seventh-ranked Jacksonville and 10th-ranked North Carolina State.

The Davidson-VMI contest topped a relatively light card Thursday night. Elsewhere, Navy smashed Gettysburg 73-56; Furman thumped Wofford 109-86; Georgetown defeated George Washington 100-81; Drake got by Wichita State 98-85; St. Louis defeated St. Peter's 94-83 and Bradley socked North Texas State 91-86.

Also Utah beat Arizona State 93-92; Wyoming topped New Mexico 92-74 and Texas-El Paso tripped Colorado State 77-64.

Davidson's triumph was its 51st consecutive homecourt success. The last team to beat the Wildcats at home was VMI. Bryan Adrian led Davidson's balanced scoring attack with 18 points and Lee Seibert had 15 points for the losers.

Jack Conrad scored 24 points for Navy as the Midshipmen snapped a nine-game losing string. Contributing to the Middies' success was a 44.8 shooting percentage from the field.

Don Weber fired in 25 points to lead Georgetown over George Washington. The Hoyas pulled away from a 49-49 halftime tie as Charlie Adrien pumped in 10

Philadelphia rode Gary Dornhoefer's hat trick to a 4-1 victory over Los Angeles that boosted the Flyers into a second-place tie with Minnesota in the West Division.

Meanwhile, Montreal rolled over Pittsburgh 3-1 in the night's only other game to advance to a second-place tie with Boston in the East chase.

By BILL McGAFFNEY

The Associated Press is conducting a poll to determine the outstanding sports figures of the 1960's and the Athletes of the Decade. We have been asked for our selections and have submitted the following to AP:

Baseball — Willie Mays; Football — Paul Hornung; Basketball — Bill Russell; Golf — Arnold Palmer; Hockey — Bobby Hull.

Our pick for Athlete of the Decade, by a flip of the coin, was Bill Russell over Arnold Palmer.

The sites for the 1969-70 Ohio High School sectional and district basketball tournaments have been selected and teams assigned. We will publish the complete list in a couple of days for the benefit of all our ardent basketball fans.

Russ Merrin of Capital University is second in field goal percentage in the Ohio Conference. He is shooting at an amazing .609 from the field. Russ is a former Logan Elm standout and a real credit to the community.

Our little gem of information . . . Colorcast of the Browns-Vikings NFL championship game was carried by 212 stations, 61 in French language, and over 245 radio stations in the U.S. plus the Armed Forces radio.

Before the Pro Football Championships started, we picked our finalists for the Super Bowl and placed them in a sealed envelope. With the game for "all the marbles" coming up this Sunday, we will now open the envelope and reveal our selections. OOPS — Browns and the Raiders . . . Oh well, wait till next year.

Our "fearless" forecast — Logan Elm will split with a win over Bishop Flagnet and a loss to the powerful Laurelville five . . . Westfall will win over Pike-ton but suffer defeat at Adena . . . Teays Valley will take Dublin . . . Circleville will hit the win trail with victories over Greenfield and Franklin Heights.

PRO-dictions — Vikings to get the big bank account when they plunder the Chiefs in Jean Lafitte's pirate stronghold.

Last year's "fearless" forecasting left a little to be desired but this is another year. If you think we'll be any better — FORGET IT.

Until next time, have a nice day — be a good sport.

Penn State Remains No. 2 Despite Amazing Record

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Here in the Nittany Mountains on the sprawling campus of Penn State University the argument will never die. Penn State is the No. 1 college football team of 1969, not Texas. The final Associated Press top 10 poll made Texas No. 1 and Penn State No. 2. Penn State people can read, but they don't believe the final judgement of the experts. They can't understand how a team which has won 22 straight games and hasn't been defeated in its last 30 games could rank No. 2 to anyone.

Both of these streaks are the longest current streaks in major college football. The 30 game defeatless record is the longest since Oklahoma's 48 in 1953 through 1957. Only a 17-17 tie against Florida State in the Jan. 1, 1967, Gator Bowl mars Penn State's football record over the last three years.

The last time the Nittany Lions lost was in the third game of the 1967 season, 17-15 to UCLA. Coach Joe Paterno says his team has met every challenge and if it isn't No. 1, he doesn't know who is better.

Paterno says Penn State played a tougher schedule than Texas. The Lions beat Colorado, Kansas State and Missouri, all of the Big Eight, one of the toughest conferences in the nation. They routed West Virginia, the only defeat for the Mountaineers who wound up a winner over South Carolina in the Peach Bowl. Colorado went to the Liberty Bowl and whipped Alabama.

Penn State did it all. They won 11 games without a loss, scored 322 points to 90 for the opposition. It produced All-Americans in tackle Mike Reid and linebacker Dennis Onkotz. Neal Smith, a little safetyman, intercepted 11 passes and made third team All-America. Its offense wasn't sensational, but it got the job done when it had to be done.

The annual professional football draft will be held in a few weeks, and Penn State people suggest the nation, including President Richard Nixon, see how many Penn State players are drafted high by the pros as against Texas.

Poll or no poll, at Penn State, and wherever Nittany Lions' followers gather, Paterno's legion is No. 1.

Chicago Bulls Defeat Phoenix; Win, 152-123

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you followed the bouncing ball in the Chicago Bulls-Phoenix Suns National Basketball Association game, it was either going through the hoop or into the hands of Chicago's Tom Boerwinkle.

The Bulls shot up the biggest score in their four-year history Thursday night by blasting the Suns 152-123, with Boerwinkle pulling down a team and Chicago Stadium record of 37 rebounds.

Chicago broke the game open by hitting a club-record 44 points in the third quarter. Bob Love led the Bulls with 34 points, and Connie Hawkins scored 29 for Phoenix.

In the only other NBA game, San Diego topped San Francisco 120-103.

Michigan State gymnast Dave Thor won six Big Ten titles and one NCAA crown.

ABA Makes New Peace Bid With NBA In Bidding Battle

NEW YORK (AP) — The fledgling American Basketball Association has made another peace offering to the older and more established National Basketball Association in hopes of warding off a continuation of the bitter bidding battle between the rival leagues.

"We believe there is sentiment in the NBA to discuss a merger," said Jack Dolph, new commissioner of the ABA. Dolph, who was not the commissioner when the first merger talks fell through last summer, revealed Thursday that he has asked NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy to resume the talks.

However, there are two major obstacles standing in the way — the NBA feels the ABA's Washington, D.C., franchise is infringing on the territory of its Baltimore team, and the three-year-old ABA anti-trust suit against the NBA.

Dolph said the NBA has "given us an ultimatum about what we must do before they even talk about a merger."

He emphasized, however, that he was not planning on getting rid of the Washington franchise.

He said although the switch of the franchise from Oakland to Washington was given as one of the reasons for failure of last summer's merger talk to materialize, it was his understanding that the talks "deteriorated before the move came up."

But, he added, "I believe the problem can be discussed and a way found to solve it that would be satisfactory to the ABA and Earl Foreman (Washington's owner)."

Dolph also said there could be an "area of compromise" concerning the antitrust suit.

"I can understand their position of not wanting to make war while trying to negotiate a peace, but we must protect ourselves in case there is no merger. We can't completely drop everything."

Dolph warned a "bidding war will cost millions," adding: "I have always felt the economic situation will dictate some accommodation between the leagues."

Meanwhile, Kennedy said the "ABA knows what must be done to reopen negotiations. If they're interested, I expect to hear from them."

Chuvale Rejects Offer For Match

TORONTO (AP) — George Chuvale, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, has turned down a $40,000 offer for a rematch with Jerry Quarry in New York's Madison Square Garden as part of the Joe Frazier-Jimmy Ellis heavyweight championship card Feb. 16.

Irv Unterman, Chuvale's manager, and matchmaker Teddy Brenner had reached agreement on the money in a meeting here Thursday night but left the final decision up to Dr. Joe Greenberg, Chuvale's personal physician.

Kapp Almost Forgotten Man Despite Amazing Record

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — After 10 professional football seasons, they still called Joe Kapp a rookie quarterback.

Peacock Jones of Los Angeles tagged the Minnesota Vikings quarterback with that line in 1968 after the Rams trounced Kapp and Co. 31-3.

But Kapp finally made it to the top with a flourish in 1969 as he led the Vikings to the National Football League championship and into Sunday's Super Bowl against the Kansas City Chiefs.

Michigan Golf Tourney Fiasco Still Unsettled

By LARRY PALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — A co-sponsor of last September's abortive Michigan Golf Classic says he is still involved in "the very unromantic job of picking up the pieces."

Phil Lachman, a Detroit trophy manufacturer, shared the sponsorship of the $100,000 tournament with businessman John Brennan. But at the completion of the tourney, won by Larry Ziegler, they announced there was no money available to pay the golfers.

"I'd say we hope to lock things up within 30 days or so," Lachman said Thursday.

Several days after the tournament ended Sept. 7, Lachman called a news conference to explain the fiasco. He put most of the blame on tournament director Marshall Chambers who Lachman called "a terrific smoothie."

The Tournament Players Division of the Professional Golfers Association later said it would provide $50,000 from its general fund to pay players half of what they were entitled. First prize in the event, held in Walled Lake, Mich., was $20,000.

Lachman was asked if the PGA has been reimbursed any of the money.

"I don't have any comment on that," he replied.

"The first thing we did was pay off all the little people so they wouldn't be hurt," he said, referring to those who held minor jobs during the tournament. "By far the majority of creditors have been taken care of or have been given an understanding of what to expect," Lachman added. "Most of the local creditors have been very fair and patient about it."

Junior High Cagers Lose To Lancaster

Failure to convert at the foul line hurt the Circleville Junior High Basketball team as they lost a close one Thursday to Lancaster Ewing 43-39.

Playing on the Lancaster home court the little Tigers made a poor showing at the charity stripe making only 7 of 18 attempts.

Circleville trailed at the end of the first period 17-13 but rallied to take a halftime lead 24-22.

The little Tigers maintained a 33-29 lead at the end of the third stanza but had a poor fourth quarter scoring six points while Ewing racked up 14 to take the fray 43-39.

Brian Barthelmus paced the Tiger Cubs with 16-points. Perry Hoskins contributed eight, Dave Mahalik had seven, John Ankrom four, Mike Speakman two and Robin Martin had two to complete the Circleville scoring.

Gelpin and Altop led the Ewing Juniors with 13-counters each while Burney added 12.

The Circleville squad will travel to Lancaster Stanberry Tuesday and game time will be 4:45 p.m.

John Bateman, catcher for the Montreal Expos, is a native of Killeen, Tex., home of Orville Moody, 1969 U. S. Open golf champion.

Now, Kapp again is almost the forgotten man. Chiefs quarterback Len Dawson is getting most of the attention in New Orleans on the heels of an NBC report that Dawson would be questioned in connection with recent gambling arrests.

Kapp, however, still causes commotion, especially when newsmen swarm around him to ask about flutter passes and reckless running. "I don't think my passes flatter," he says with a raspy friendliness. "I think I throw pretty good. I can zip them. And I'm not a scrambler. I'm a passer first. A scrambler goes back with the run in the back of his head."

"I only run when I have to. I only called my number about 10 times this season, and many of those were to run out the clock or when I sneaked. The others were on broken plays or when the receivers were recovered. Kapp ran for the winning touchdown in a 23-20 Western Conference playoff victory over Los Angeles after setting it up with a scramble.

In a 27-7 NFL title victory over Cleveland, the 31-year-old ran into the running back he was trying to hand off to, but kept the ball and bulled his way seven yards into the end zone.

"I have seen some very beautiful quarterbacks," said Kapp, who played eight seasons in the Canadian Football League before joining Minnesota in 1967. "I guess I'm not as graceful but everybody has to do the job anyway he can."

His teammates say he practices like he plays. In preparing for Cleveland in a passing drill without linemen, Kapp went back to pass and couldn't find a receiver. He smiled meekly and gingerly stepped across the line on a simulated Kapp Keeper.

On the next play, he barked out the signals: "Touchdown, hut, hut, hut."

Southern Cagers Pacing Sport

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
College basketball is alive and well in the South. Oh, boy, is it ever.

Six of the nation's top ten teams are from that region—and Thursday night, Davidson upheld the tradition of the South by embarrassing Virginia Military Institute 95-52.

Davidson is just one of a basketful of southern teams having outstanding seasons. The others include Kentucky, South Carolina and North Carolina, ranked Nos. 2, 3 and 4 respectively seventh-ranked Jacksonville and 10th-ranked North Carolina State.

The Davidson-VMI contest topped a relatively light card Thursday night. Elsewhere, Navy smashed Gettysburg 73-56; Furman thumped Wofford 109-66; Georgetown defeated George Washington 100-81; Drake got by Wichita State 88-85; St. Louis defeated St. Peter's 94-83 and Bradley socked North Texas State 91-86.

Also Utah beat Arizona State 93-92; Wyoming topped New Mexico 92-74 and Texas-El Paso tripped Colorado State 77-64.

Davidson's triumph was its 51st consecutive homecourt success. The last team to beat the Wildcats at home was VMI.

Bryan Adrian led Davidson's balanced scoring attack with 18 points and Lee Seibert had 15 points for the losers.

Jack Conrad scored 24 points for Navy as the Midshipmen snapped a nine-game losing string. Contributing to the Middies' success was a 44.8 shooting percentage from the field.

Don Weber fired in 25 points to lead Georgetown over George Washington. The Hoyas pulled away from a 49-49 halftime tie as Charlie Adrian pumped in 10

ABA Makes New Peace Bid With NBA In Bidding Battle

NEW YORK (AP) — The fledgling American Basketball Association has made another peace offering to the older and more established National Basketball Association in hopes of warding off a continuation of the bitter bidding battle between the rival leagues.

"We believe there is sentiment in the NBA to discuss a merger," said Jack Dolph, new commissioner of the ABA, Dolph, who was not the commissioner when the first merger talks fell through last summer, revealed Thursday that he has asked NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy to resume the talks.

However, there are two major obstacles standing in the way — the NBA feels the ABA's Washington, D.C., franchise is infringing on the territory of its Baltimore team, and the three-year-old ABA anti-trust suit against the NEA.

But, he added, "I believe the problem can be discussed and a way found to solve it that would be satisfactory to the ABA and Earl Foreman (Washington's owner)."

Dolph also said there could be an "area of compromise" concerning the antitrust suit. "I can not understand their position of not wanting to make war while trying to negotiate a peace, but we must protect ourselves in case there is no merger. We can't completely drop everything."

Dolph warned a "bidding war will cost millions," adding: "I have always felt the economic situation will dictate some accommodation between the leagues."

Top Ohio Cage Teams Face Important Road Contests

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State, Ohio University and Miami, three of the state's top college basketball squads, face important road games Saturday that could go a long way toward deciding their 1970 title chances.

Ohio State, 1-0 in the Big Ten, goes to Illinois for a matinee game. The Illini and Buckeyes, two of the conference favorites, meet only once this season.

Illinois shares the early league lead with Iowa, each 2-0. Ohio State whipped Minnesota

78-71 in its lone Big Ten assignment.

Ninth-ranked Ohio University, picked to unseat Miami as Mid-American Conference champion, visits Bowling Green. The Falcons are making their 1969-70 league debut while Ohio U. thumped Kent State 78-52 last week in its only conference game.

Miami, which opened its title defense with an impressive 61-47 victory Wednesday at Kent State, travels to Toledo. The Rockets, led by 7-foot Doug Hess, are playing their first Mid-American contest after a 6-1 non-league start.

Cincinnati shoots for its second straight Missouri Valley Conference verdict at home against rugged Louisville.

Capital, 5-0 in the Ohio Conference, can strengthen its league lead at home against Oberlin (1-1). Otterbein, pressing Capital for the top spot with a 4-0 OC mark, takes on visiting Ohio Dominican in an independent game.

Elsewhere in the Ohio Conference, Heidelberg (2-2) is at Muskingum (1-2), Marietta (2-1) at Hiram (0-3), Mount Union (1-2) Denison (2-3), Ohio Wesleyan (0-1) at Wooster (2-2) and Wittenberg (1-2) at Baldwin-Wallace (0-2).

The Mid-Ohio Conference lead will be at stake when Wilmington (3-0) visits Defiance (2-0).

In other Mid-Ohio games, Findlay (1-1) goes to Cedarville (0-1) and Malone (0-3) to Bluffton (0-1).

Unbeaten St. Bonaventure, fired by 6-foot-10 Bob Lanier, plays at Kent, undefeated Youngstown guns for win No. 11 at Hillsdale, Providence at Dayton and Xavier travels to Air Force.

In other Saturday games, Bethany is at Case Tech in the Presidents Conference, Alliance at Akron, Oakland at Ashland, Franklin at Wilberforce, Central State at Kentucky State, Ohio Northern at Hanover, Walsh at Point Park, Eastern Michigan at Cleveland State and Urbana at Indiana Northern.

Lunn, Hill, Cerrudo Share Lead In L.A. Open Tourney

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Lunn, Dave Hill and Ron Cerrudo shared a one-stroke lead going into today's second round in the $100,000 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament, but all were busily casting anxious glances over their shoulders at the greatest charger of them all.

Lunn, a burly, soft-spoken 220-pounder, the slim, tough Hill and 24-year-old Cerrudo all fashioned 66s, five-under-par on the 8,821-yard Rancho Park Golf Club course Thursday, but had little reason to rejoice.

Looming just behind them was awesome Arnold Palmer, the rejuvenated millionaire who won the final two tournaments of the 1969 season and is gunning for the third, three-in-a-row string of his incredible career.

Palmer coasted in with 67, just one back of the leaders, and was tied at that figure with Fred Marti and Don Massengale.

Scores generally were low in the near-perfect golfing weather, mild temperatures with no wind. In all, 62 of the field of 144 matched or bettered par.

Palmer, appearing more relaxed and casual than he has in weeks, refused to get excited about his round.

"It wasn't bad, considering I haven't played but four rounds in about a month," he said. "My irons weren't as sharp as I'd like for them to be, and I could make some complaints, but I won't."

Hill, a straight-talking guy who has had more than his share of suspensions in a stormy career that was highlighted by three victories in 1969, said he was surprised at his round.

"My putting saved me. But I've got to do a lot of work. Old Dave isn't going to putt like that every day."

Lunn and Cerrudo, who grew up as golfing opponents in the San Francisco area, both said they were highly pleased with their rounds. Neither had a bogey and each claimed a 40-foot birdie putt.

Some of the top names, however, had their difficulties. Lee Trevino and PGA champion Ray Floyd managed to match par 71, while defending champion Charlie Sifford, Masters titleholder George Archer and British Open champion Tony Jacklin had 72s. U.S. Open champ Orville Moody was far back in the field at 74.

Demoss Named Purdue Coach

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Bob Demoss, in Purdue football as player and assistant coach for almost 25 years, was named head coach of the Boilermakers Thursday.

He replaces Jack Mollenkopf, who retired Wednesday after 23 years on the Purdue coaching staff, 14 as head coach.

The announcement was made by athletic director Guy "Red" Mackey.

Demoss has been in charge of Purdue offensive tactics for years, including the last five in which the Boilermakers never lost more than two games a season.

SARNOFF RESIGNS — Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, 79, who helped launch the giant communications company 60 years ago, has resigned as chairman of the board of RCA Corp., ending 60 years as an executive. He was succeeded by his son, Robert W. Sarnoff, president since 1966. The elder Sarnoff was elected the first honorary chairman in RCA's history.

SPORTS Highlights

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics' first basketball statistical report of the season lists George Adams of Gardner-Webb, N.C., as the individual scoring leader.

Adams, a sophomore, is averaging 32.1 points per game, leading Rickie Nelson of Rhode Island College. Nelson has a 31.6 point average. NAIA all-star Fred Davis of Howard Payne, Tex., is third with 31.3.

Bob Long of Cumberland, Ky., follows with 31.1, and Harvey Sebree of Oregon Tech with 30.1.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Deciding that the Central Ohio League of which it is a member offers a better multi-sports program, Upper Arlington High School has turned down a bid to join the All-America Conference.

Athletic Director Mary Moorehead said increased travel connected with membership in the All-America also would be too much of a problem. Upper Arlington has been The Associated Press' Class AA Ohio football poll champion for the last three years.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outfielder Curt Flood said Thursday night he does not intend to play baseball until his legal challenge of the reserve clause in the players' contract is settled.

Gov. Kirk Wants Super Bowl Back

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Super Bowl belongs in Miami, Gov. Claude Kirk said Thursday and added he intends to take drastic steps to return the game to the Orange Bowl.

Top Ohio Cage Teams Face Important Road Contests

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State, Ohio University and Miami, three of the state's top college basketball squads, face important road dates Saturday that could go a long way toward deciding their 1970 title chances.

Ohio State, 1-0 in the Big Ten, goes to Illinois for a matinee game. The Illini and Buckeyes, two of the conference favorites, meet only once this season.

Illinois shares the early league lead with Iowa, each 2-0. Ohio State whipped Minnesota

78-71 in its lone Big Ten assignment.

Ninth-ranked Ohio University, picked to unseat Miami as Mid-American Conference champion, visits Bowling Green. The Falcons are making their 1969-70 league debut while Ohio U. thumped Kent State 78-52 last week in its only conference game.

Miami, which opened its title defense with an impressive 61-47 victory Wednesday at Kent State, travels to Toledo. The Rockets, led by 7-foot Doug Hess, are playing their first Mid-American contest after a 6-1 non-league start. Cincinnati shoots for its second straight Missouri Valley Conference verdict at home against rugged Louisville.

Capital, 5-0 in the Ohio Conference, can strengthen its league lead at home against Oberlin (1-1). Otterbein, pressing Capital for the top spot with a 4-0 OC mark, takes on visiting Ohio Dominican in an independent game.

Elsewhere in the Ohio Conference, Heidelberg (2-2) is at Muskingum (1-2), Marietta (2-1) at Hiram (0-3), Mount Union (1-2) Denison (2-3), Ohio Wesleyan (0-1) at Wooster (2-2) and Wittenberg (1-2) at Baldwin-Wallace (0-2).

The Mid-Ohio Conference lead will be at stake when Wilmington (3-0) visits Defiance (2-0).

In other Mid-Ohio games, Findlay (1-1) goes to Cedarville (0-1) and Malone (0-3) to Bluffton (0-1).

Unbeaten St. Bonaventure, fired by 6-foot-10 Bob Lanier, plays at Kent, undefeated Youngstown guns for win No. 11 at Hillsdale, Providence at Dayton and Xavier travels to Air Force.

In other Saturday games, Bethany is at Case Tech in the Presidents Conference, Alliance at Akron, Oakland at Ashland, Franklin at Wilberforce, Central State at Kentucky State, Ohio Northern at Hanover, Walsh at Point Park, Eastern Michigan at Cleveland State and Urbana at Indiana Northern.

Lunn, Hill, Cerrudo Share Lead In L.A. Open Tourney

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Lunn, Dave Hill and Ron Cerrudo shared a one-stroke lead going into today's second round in the $100,000 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament, but all were busily casting anxious glances over their shoulders at the greatest charger of them all.

Lunn, a burly, soft-spoken 220-pounder, the slim, tough Hill and 24-year-old Cerrudo all fashioned 66s, five-under-par on the 6,821-yard Rancho Park Golf Club course Thursday, but had little reason to rejoice.

Looming just behind them was awesome Arnold Palmer, the rejuvenated millionaire who won the final two tournaments of the 1969 season and is gunning for the third, three-in-a-row string of his incredible career.

Palmer coasted in with 67, just one back of the leaders, and was tied at that figure with Fred Marti and Don Massengale.

Scores generally were low in the near-perfect golfing weather, mild temperatures with no wind. In all, 62 of the field of 144 matched or bettered par. Palmer, appearing more relaxed and casual than he has in weeks, refused to get excited about his round.

"It wasn't bad, considering I haven't played but four rounds in about a month," he said. "My irons weren't as sharp as I'd like for them to be, and I could make some complaints, but I won't."

Hill, a straight-talking guy who has had more than his share of suspensions in a stormy career that was highlighted by three victories in 1969, said he was surprised at his round.

"My putting saved me. But I've got to do a lot of work. Old Dave isn't going to putt like that every day."

Lunn and Cerrudo, who grew up as golfing opponents in the San Francisco area, both said they were highly pleased with their rounds. Neither had a bogey and each claimed a 40-foot birdie putt.

Some of the top names, however, had their difficulties. Lee Trevino and PGA champion Ray Floyd managed to match par 71, while defending champion Charlie Sifford, Masters titleholder George Archer and British Open champion Tony Jacklin had 72s. U.S. Open champ Orville Moody was far back in the field at 74.

Big Money Loss To Universities Seen By Millett

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Board of Regents Chancellor John D. Millett says Ohio's 12 state universities may lose as much as $100 million during the current biennium due to inflation.

Millett, testifying Thursday before a legislative committee, said he warned the university presidents three times, but added, "I'll be damned if I know if they were listening."

Last August the legislature approved $285 million in 1968 bond issue money for capital improvements at the universities. It is this money that Millett predicted would be cut due to inflation. Millett also said another $50 million in federal aid "is all going down the drain" because of inflation.

The capital improvements money was earmarked for use during the two-year period ending June 30, 1970. Millett said he didn't know which schools and projects would be curtailed if the inflation strikes as badly as he predicted.

Lukens of Middletown.

Lukens office said that Lukens will announce his political plans sometime next week.

Jones, father of four, is a partner in the Lebanon law firm of Young and Jones. He served as prosecutor from 1956 to 1960 and is a member of the Republican State Committee.

The 24th district includes all of Butler, Warren and Clinton counties and parts of Hamilton and Montgomery.

Cast Named For Group's Upcoming Play

Casting for the February production of Roundtown Players has been completed.

Mrs. Ortha Stambaugh, director, announced members of the cast for "Absence of a Cello" following the two nights of tryouts.

The director noted today she was "well pleased with the response at the tryout sessions." At the same time she encouraged those who didn't qualify for roles in this particular play, to become active in other functions of the community theater group.

Members of the cast for the Ira Wallach comedy are as follows: Dave Gillespie will portray Andrew Pilgrim; his wife, Celia, will be played by Mrs. Carolyn Young; Mrs. Wayne E. Smith will be seen as Marian Jellicoe; Debbie Young will play the role of Joanna Pilgrim; Mrs. Edith Grigg has the role of Emma Littlewood; Bill Chandler will play Perry Littlewood; and Steve Stevenson will play the role of Otis Clifton.

Mrs. Stambaugh also invited interested persons to a production meeting 8 p. m. Monday on the second floor of Memorial Hall. All committees are to attend the session in an effort to get an early start in organizing production crews.

Jones To Seek Lukens' Seat In Congress

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Former Warren county prosecutor Fred E. Jones, 43, was a candidate today for the Republican nomination for the 24th Ohio District seat in Congress now held by Rep. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens of Middletown.

Lukens office said that Lukens will announce his political plans sometime next week.

Jones, father of four, is a partner in the Lebanon law firm of Young and Jones. He served as prosecutor from 1956 to 1960 and is a member of the Republican State Committee.

Herbert Philbrick Wants Lukens To Run For Senate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although Rep. Donald Lukens of Middletown is expected to announce next week as a Republican candidate for governor, one of his more famous backers is still plugging him for the U. S. Senate.

Herbert A. Philbrick, a man who led three lives for the FBI, has been soliciting funds for the "Lukens for Senator" committee.

Letters addressed to "My fellow conservative American" have gone out all over the country from Philbrick's Bethesda, Md., home.

In it, the onetime FBI undercover agent, solicits contributions to help elect the 38-year-old Congressman to the Senate.

"We often hear," said Philbrick in his letter, "that the Democrats cannot be replaced. They can and must be replaced and the way to accomplish that is to elect good men when they are young men."

Atty. J. Craig Wright of Columbus last week said a telegram sent to Rep. Robert Taft Jr. accusing the Congressman of a conflict of interest in some floor votes was dictated by him and nobody else.

Wright denied that anyone in the office of Gov. James A. Rhodes had anything to do with it as had been reported earlier.

Rhodes and Taft are opponents in the GOP primary campaign for the U.S. Senate.

Although Taft holds a considerable amount of stock, he has disclosed his holdings in the Congressional Record and placed the stocks in trust.

The big money market was explained in detail this week to a House committee studying a bill to exempt FHA and VA loans from Ohio's usury law limiting interest to 8 per cent.

The only opponent to the bill, Warren Smith of AFL-CIO, suggested that interest rates were set by five or six men meeting in some New York office.

It prompted a wag to paraphrase Vice President Spiro Agnew.

"Prime rate," he wrote in a note passed to Committee Chairman Robert Netzel of Laura, "is established by five or six effete snobs in New York determining what you—the public—will pay."

Netzel came up with another answer.

"It is the lowest rate, given to companies that have so much money they don't need a loan in the first place," he said.

Claim Cease-Fire Ignored During Black Panther Fight

CHICAGO (AP) — An inquest into the shooting deaths of two Black Panther party leaders in a police raid has been told by Sgt. Daniel R. Groth that he called for a cease-fire three times while the raid was in progress.

Each time, Groth testified Thursday, gunfire continued from inside the West Side apartment building where he had gone with 13 other policemen with a warrant to search for illegal weapons.

Fred Hampton, 21, leader of the Black Panther party in Illinois, and Mark Clark, 22, a downstate party leader, were killed. Groth and the 13 other Chicago policemen who conducted the raid did so under special assignment to the Cook County state's attorney's office.

Groth testified that when the men he was directing attempted to serve the warrant at Hampton's apartment they were met with gunfire.

Earlier Thursday the six-man jury, a racially mixed group of leading Chicagoans, toured the apartment for 10 minutes.

Groth said he ordered the first cease-fire because he thought one of his policemen was wounded. He said he told all five men near him to cease firing.

But, he said, a "shot rang out and they (the police) resumed their firing."

Groth said he ordered still another cease-fire and heard another policeman in the rear say, "Come out with your hands up."

He said "a voice came from what I considered to be the first bedroom and said, 'Shoot it out,' and the shotgun blast was fired from the first bedroom."

Groth said he ordered still another cease-fire and was told that some of the occupants of the rear of the apartment were surrendering.

As those Panthers were surrendering, Groth said, "I pleaded with the occupants of the front bedroom to surrender."

He said another shot came from the front bedroom and one of the policemen began pouring fire into it.

Big Money Loss To Universities Seen By Millett

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Board of Regents Chancellor John D. Millett says Ohio's 12 state universities may lose as much as $100 million during the current biennium due to inflation.

Millett, testifying Thursday before a legislative committee, said he warned the university presidents three times, but added, "I'll be damned if I know if they were listening."

Last August the legislature approved $285 million in 1968 bond issue money for capital improvements at the universities. It is this money that Millett predicted would be cut due to inflation. Millett also said another $50 million in federal aid "is all going down the drain" because of inflation.

The capital improvements money was earmarked for use during the two-year period ending June 30, 1970. Millett said he didn't know which schools and projects would be curtailed if the inflation strikes as badly as he predicted.

The director noted today she was "well pleased with the response at the tryout sessions." At the same time she encouraged those who didn't qualify for roles in this particular play, to become active in other functions of the community theater group.

Cast Named For Group's Upcoming Play

Casting for the February production of Roundtown Players has been completed.

Mrs. Ortha Stambaugh, director, announced members of the cast for "Absence of a Cello" following the two nights of tryouts.

The director noted today she was "well pleased with the response at the tryout sessions." At the same time she encouraged those who didn't qualify for roles in this particular play, to become active in other functions of the community theater group.

Members of the cast for the Ira Wallach comedy are as follows: Dave Gillespie will portray Andrew Pilgrim; his wife, Celia, will be played by Mrs. Carolyn Young; Mrs. Wayne E. Smith will be seen as Marian Jellicoe; Debbie Young will play the role of Joanna Pilgrim; Mrs. Edith Grigg has the role of Emma Littlewood; Bill Chandler will play Perry Littlewood; and Steve Stevenson will play the role of Otis Clifton.

Mrs. Stambaugh also invited interested persons to a production meeting 8 p. m. Monday on the second floor of Memorial Hall. All committees are to attend the session in an effort to get an early start in organizing production crews.

Jones To Seek Lukens' Seat In Congress

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Former Warren county prosecutor Fred E. Jones, 43, was a candidate today for the Republican nomination for the 24th Ohio District seat in Congress now held by Rep. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens of Middletown.

Lukens office said that Lukens will announce his political plans sometime next week.

Jones, father of four, is a partner in the Lebanon law firm of Young and Jones. He served as prosecutor from 1956 to 1960 and is a member of the Republican State Committee.

The 24th district includes all of Butler, Warren and Clinton counties and parts of Hamilton and Montgomery.

Herbert Philbrick Wants Lukens To Run For Senate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although Rep. Donald Lukens of Middletown is expected to announce next week as a Republican candidate for governor, one of his more famous backers is still plugging him for the U. S. Senate.

Herbert A. Philbrick, a man who led three lives for the FBI, has been soliciting funds for the "Lukens for Senator" committee.

Letters addressed to "My fellow conservative American" have gone out all over the country from Philbrick's Bethesda, Md., home.

In it, the onetime FBI undercover agent, solicits contributions to help elect the 38-year-old Congressman to the Senate. "We often hear," said Philbrick in his letter, "that the Dirksens cannot be replaced. They can and must be replaced and the way to accomplish that is to elect good men when they are young men."

Atty. J. Craig Wright of Columbus last week said a telegram sent to Rep. Robert Taft Jr. accusing the Congressman of a conflict of interest in some floor votes was dictated by him and nobody else.

Wright denied that anyone in the office of Gov. James A. Rhodes had anything to do with it as had been reported earlier.

Rhodes and Taft are opponents in the GOP primary campaign for the U.S. Senate.

Although Taft holds a considerable amount of stock, he has disclosed his holdings in the Congressional Record and placed the stocks in trust.

The big money market was explained in detail this week to a House committee studying a bill to exempt FHA and VA loans from Ohio's usury law limiting interest to 8 per cent.

The only opponent to the bill, Warren Smith of AFL-CIO, suggested that interest rates were set by five or six men meeting in some New York office.

It prompted a wag to paraphrase Vice President Spiro Agnew.

"Prime rate," he wrote in a note passed to Committee Chairman Robert Netzley of Laura, "is established by five or six effete snobs in New York determining what you—the public—will pay."

Netzley came up with another answer.

"It is the lowest rate, given to companies that have so much money they don't need a loan in the first place," he said.

Claim Cease-Fire Ignored During Black Panther Fight

CHICAGO (AP)—An inquest into the shooting deaths of two Black Panther party leaders in a police raid has been told by Sgt. Daniel R. Groth that he called for a cease-fire three times while the raid was in progress.

Each time, Groth testified Thursday, gunfire continued from inside the West Side apartment building where he had gone with 13 other policemen with a warrant to search for illegal weapons.

Fred Hampton, 21, leader of the Black Panther party in Illinois, and Mark Clark, 22, a downstate party leader, were killed. Groth and the 13 other Chicago policemen who conducted the raid did so under special assignment to the Cook County state's attorney's office.

Groth testified that when the men he was directing attempted to serve the warrant at Hampton's apartment they were met with gunfire.

Earlier Thursday the six-man jury, a racially mixed group of leading Chicagoans, toured the apartment for 10 minutes.

Groth said he ordered the first cease-fire because he thought one of his policemen was wounded. He said he told all five men near him to cease firing.

But, he said, a "shot rang out and they (the police) resumed their firing."

Groth said he ordered still another cease-fire and heard another policeman in the rear say, "Come out with your hands up."

He said "a voice came from what I considered to be the first bedroom and said, 'Shoot it out,' and the shotgun blast was fired from the first bedroom."

Groth said he ordered still another cease-fire and was told that some of the occupants of the rear of the apartment were surrendering.

As those Panthers were surrendering, Groth said, "I pleaded with the occupants of the front bedroom to surrender."

He said another shot came from the front bedroom and one of the policemen began pouring fire into it.
